The case of the state against C. C. Williams, charged with renting houses on Main street for an immoral purpose, was called for trial in Judge Leaning's court Saturday and continued until September 12, on application of the state, whose material witness, Police Judge Gresham, was unable to be present, owing to a case on trial in his court.

It is said respectable young women employed on Main street have been subpoenaed as witnesses for the defense, and great indignation is expressed that these parties, who know nothing whatever about the case, should be dragged into court to testify.

SOON TO LEAVE SEDALIA

MISS FAITH E. SMITH HAS RESIGNED AS PUBLIC LIBRARIAN.

GOES TO PITTSBURG NEXT MONTH

Has a $1200 a Year Position as Director of the Training School for Children's Libraries—No Successor Named.

Miss Faith E. Smith, for seven years librarian at the public library in this city, tendered her resignation to the members of the library board at the regular meeting of that body Friday afternoon, to take effect on Sept. 30.

The resignation was received with regret, after Miss Smith had declined to remain for a substantial increase in salary.

On October 1 Miss Smith leaves for Pittsburg, Pa., where she will accept the position of director of the training school for children's librarians, under Miss Frances Olcott, head librarian of the children's department in the public library at Pittsburg, the salary being $1,200 per annum.

Miss Smith came to Sedalia in 1900, she previously having been connected with the New York library school at Albany, N. Y. In the same year the $50,000 Carnegie library building was erected in this city, and Miss Smith was elected as librarian.

She filled the position so acceptably and to the entire satisfaction of both patrons of the library and the members of the library board, that she has each year since been re-elected to the position.

Besides being thoroughly equipped for the responsible duties of the office, and accommodating at all times and under all circumstances, Miss Smith is possessed of a kind and lovable disposition, which has endeared her to every person fortunate enough to make her acquaintance, and it is indeed with regret that Sedalians will see her leave, but at the same time all will rejoice in her well-merited promotion.

Who will succeed Miss Smith is not known at present. It is likely, however, that the assistant librarians, Misses McDaniel and Curran, will perform Miss Smith's present duties at the library after October 1, until such time as a permanent librarian is chosen.

BOUGHT HIS OWN HARNESS

The Thief, However, Was Permitted to Escape Temporarily.

Some time Friday afternoon a set of harness was stolen from Dr. J. M. Harris, the colored physician. Early Saturday morning a negro boy attempted to sell a set of harness at a West Main street second-hand store, but the proprietor refused to buy.

Later the negro boy took the harness to the store of Lampe & Russ, where it was offered for $3. One of the proprietors said he knew a man who would buy it, and went up stairs to Dr. Harris' office and notified him that a negro was downstairs trying to sell his harness.

Dr. Harris bought the harness for $3, but let the thief escape.

Later, Leslie Dodson, a negro boy, was arrested by Deputy Constable Drake, charged with stealing the harness. He was found guilty and sent to jail for thirty days by Judge Rickard.

Now With Millinery House.

Miss Mayme Hunter, formerly a Telephone operator in this city, now employed in a wholesale millinery house at Kansas City.

WAS BITTEN BY A DOG

Returns From Treatment at the Famous Pasteur Institute.

Mr. Ernest H. Hillyard, the well-known traveling man, who was bitten on the left index finger by a stray dog a little more than three weeks ago, returned Friday night from Chicago, where he took a 21-days' course of treatment at the Pasteur institute, at a total expense of about $300.

After Mr. Hillyard's departure from Sedalia it was learned that the dog that attacked him was not rabid, but the victim did not care to take any chance, and he was given the same treatment as if the canine had been suffering with the rabies, the management assuring him that if he ever experienced any bad effects from the bite the sum of $100,000 would be paid him.

Mr. Hillyard says he met patients there from all parts of the country, there being no fewer than twelve from Danville, Ind., who had been bitten by a single dog.

Supt. Buchanan Sits Up.

Prof. G. V. Buchanan, who has been bedfast for almost two weeks with appendicitis, is gradually improving. He is now able to sit up for a short time in bed. His appetite is fair, and he sleeps well, hence his early recovery is anticipated.

Lost $50 and Tickets.

John Wright, Missouri Pacific baggage-master, Saturday received a telegram from Warrensburg, stating that a man named Henry Reed had lost a pocketbook containing $50 in money and two railroad tickets from Sedalia to Kansas City near the station here.

LARGE CROWD PRESENT

THE "OLD SETTLERS' REUNION" HELD AT WINDSOR ON SATURDAY.

HEAT WAS THE ONLY DRAWBACK

Hon. Peyton A. Parks, of Clinton, Delivered a Splendid Address—Windsor Ball Club Defeated Montrose.

The Old Settlers' reunion held at Windsor Saturday, was, in point of numbers in attendance, quite up to any former meeting. In fact, owing to the extreme heat, the attendance was far in excess of what had been anticipated, and Rock Island park, one of the prettiest in the state, was filled to the limit, the crowd being estimated at from 3,000 to 4,000, and everything passed off most pleasantly.

The Windsor band, one of the best in Central Missouri, gave a street concert at 10 o'clock, and then led the crowd to the park, where a splendid picnic dinner was spread under the shade of large trees, everybody being invited to partake.

At 2 o'clock Hon. Peyton A. Parks, of Clinton, was introduced and delivered a fine address, his remarks being principally for the old settlers, but he was listened to by the thousands, and everybody enjoyed a rich treat.

Amusements of all kinds had been provided and prizes were awarded in several contests.

John W. Hall and wife having been married fifty-seven years, they were awarded the premium for being the oldest married couple on the grounds.

A closely contested game of ball was played between Windsor and Montrose, resulting in a victory for the home team by a score of 10 to 9.

The streets were in fine condition, there being but little dust, and aside from the extreme heat, everybody in attendance had a most pleasant day.

WAS THROWN FROM HORSE

Patient Was Brought to Maywood Hospital Last Night.

Orville Nelson, son of J. M. Nelson, a well known farmer residing six miles south of the city, was brought to Maywood hospital Saturday morning with a fractured and dislocated shoulder.

Nelson, who is 15 years of age, sustained his injuries by being thrown from a young horse which he mounted at 6 o'clock Saturday morning to ride over his father's farm to "round up" the stock.

Dr. W. J. Ferguson was summoned and went to the Nelson farm. The nature of the injury made it necessary to bring the young man to the hospital, which was reached about 10 o'clock. The fracture was reduced with the assistance of Drs. Pittsworth, and the young man is doing nicely.

Brought Here for Burial.

The remains of the 20-year-old son of Louis Jerrell, formerly a charcoal burner north of Sedalia, who was killed in a railroad accident at St. Joseph Friday, arrived here this morning, and were taken to the parlors of the Sedalia Undertaking company. Funeral arrangements have not been perfected.

Will Fish on the Lamine.

Charles Koock, Fred Ludemann and a number of other members of Crescent tent of the Maccabees leave this morning for a two days' fishing visit on the Lamine river.

GOOD WOMAN IS CALLED

MRS. CHRISTINA LUCKE DIED AT HER HOME AT 9:20 LAST NIGHT.

FUNERAL SERVICES BE ON MONDAY

Came to America From Germany Sixty Years Ago, and Had Resided in Sedalia for the Past Fourteen Years.

Mrs. Christiana Lucke, widow of Fred Lucke, died of general debility at her home, 515 West Third street, at 9:20 o'clock Saturday night, aged 87 years.

Rev. Fr. Neiberg will conduct funeral services at Sacred Heart church at 9 a. m. tomorrow and burial will be made in the Catholic cemetery.

Mrs. Lucke had been bedfast since two weeks ago last Wednesday. On the day previous to that she fell at her home and sustained a severe injury to one of her hips, from which she never recovered.

She bore her sufferings in silence, however, and submitted to the Divine will, and when the final summons came she passed peacefully away.

Mrs. Lucke was born in Germany. She came to America sixty years ago and settled in the vicinity of Lake Creek. Later, she moved to Smithton. There she resided for some time, and fourteen years ago she and her husband came to Sedalia, where she has since resided.

Mrs. Lucke was an ardent and zealous member of Sacred Heart church. Her donations at all times were liberal, though without ostentation, and when financial assistance was needed to uphold the parish she was always one of the foremost to lend a helping hand.

In her religious duties she ranked with the most devout, and the many acts of kindness and charity that characterized her life will long serve as a remembrance to the many who will read of her demise with sorrow.

The only surviving relatives of Mrs. Lucke are the following grandchildren: Mrs. Herminia Imhauser, of Sedalia; Mrs. Frank Twenter, of Pilot Grove; Henry and Will Imhauser, five miles southeast of Sedalia, and Johannah Imhauser, of this city.

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

Is What Mrs. Omega Richards Asks in Her Petition.

John S. Richards, better known as "Jack" Richards, employed as foreman of a day switch engine for the Missouri Pacific, was sued for divorce by his wife, Mrs. Omega Richards, in the Pettis county circuit court Saturday. W. G. Lynch is plaintiff's attorney.

Mrs. Richards alleges that her husband committed adultery with another woman, whose name is not given in the petition; also accuses the defendant of being a drunkard and of treating her harshly and cruelly and making her life unbearable.

The couple was married in this county on February 17, 1897, and lived together, with the exception of twelve days, until May 23, 1907.

Besides a decree of divorce, plaintiff also asks for the custody of their infant daughter, Myrtle Ruth Richards, and such alimony as may seem proper to the court.

Carnival Closed Last Night.

The Le Burno carnival company closed a fairly successful week's engagement at Liberty park Saturday night. The Red Men committee of Wichita tribe was not able to say how the organization would come out financially, although it is doubtful if they break even. The company goes from here to Fort Scott.

Hottest Day of Year.

Saturday was the hottest day of the year in Sedalia, the mercury registering 99 degrees at the home of Dr. R. L. Hale, Fourth and Moniteau streets. The highest heretofore was 98 degrees.

In some instances threshing outfits quit work on account of the heat.

Going to the Coast.

Cal Mann, a tinner, expects to leave soon for an extended visit in the Golden state.

Mrs. Walmsley's Sister Dead.

Mr. John Walmsley yesterday received a message from his wife apprising him of the death of her sister, Mrs. Alice Fletcher Scott, at her home in Nicholasville, Ky., Friday, of a complication of diseases. Mrs. Scott leaves two children. Mrs. Walmsley had been at her sister's bedside two weeks.

Taken Home From Maywood.

Miss Lena Fritz, who was thrown from a buggy in a runaway accident about a week ago and who has been at Maywood hospital since, was removed to her home, 1407 South Harrison avenue, Saturday. She is getting along nicely.

WILL WED SEPTEMBER 18

MR. BLYTHE MINNIER WINS A FAIR BRIDE AT EVANSVILLE, INDIANA.

A FORMER SEDALIAN TO TIE KNOT

On the Date Stated Mr. Minnier and Miss Lucy Meyer Will Be United in Wedlock by the Rev. E. W. Clippinger.

A marriage in which the groom-to-be is a Sedalia young man and the minister to perform the ceremony an ex-Sedalia divine is to be solemnized on Wednesday, September 18, at Evansville, Indiana.

The parties are Mr. Blythe J. Minnier and Miss Lucy Meyer. The wedding is to take place at the bride's home in Evansville. The Rev. E. W. Clippinger, former pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church in this city, but now of Champaign, Ill., who is a personal friend of Mr. Minnier, will perform the ceremony.

Mr. Minnier will arrive in Sedalia tomorrow from Watertown, N. Y., his present home, for a two weeks' visit with his mother, Mrs. M. A. Minnier, of 1106 South Massachusetts avenue, and sisters, Miss Florence and Mrs. M. D. Looney.

He will go to Evansville from here and from Evansville will leave on an extended honeymoon trip to the southern and eastern Atlantic states, returning to Watertown to a furnished cottage which is in waiting for the couple.

Blythe is a Sedalia boy, having been born, reared and educated in this city. Four years ago he went to Watertown to take a position in the plant of the New York Air Brake company. He has received meritorious promotions from time to time, until now he holds the very responsible position of engineer of tests for the New York Air Brake Co.

The bride-to-be is unknown in Sedalia, but is said to be a highly popular young lady and a favorite with a large circle of friends in her home city.

The congratulations of the Democrat-Sentinel, joined by the groom-to-be's many other friends, are extended in advance of the happy event.

A GENUINE CLAM BAKE

It Will Be Given at Thatcher's Ford Labor Day.

Scores of Sedalians are looking forward with pleasure to the genuine Rhode Island clam bake to be given by the Klu Klux Klan Klub, under the supervision of W. S. Rhodes, of St. Louis, at Thatcher's ford, on Flat creek, tomorrow.

Clam chowder will be served from 9:30 a. m. until 6 p. m., and those who know from experience what a clam bake is are anticipating a rare treat.

Conveyances will leave the court house at 9:30 a. m. and again at 12 o'clock m., after the Labor day parade, taking all who desire to make the trip to Thatcher's ford.

Mrs. Divers Won the Pony.

Mrs. Nannie Divers, wife of William Divers, a Missouri Pacific brakeman, residing at 912 East Fourth street, won the pony raffled off at the Globe clothing store Friday night. Mrs. Divers guessed 20,650 beans in a jar, while the correct number was 20,660.

Mrs. Divers not only receives the pony, but also a saddle and bridle, the entire outfit being valued at $55. The following gentlemen acted as judges in counting the beans: Messrs. Will Russ, Noah Shear, C. W. Kimmerly and Charles Simmonds.

STREET CARS' BAD DAY

NO FEWER THAN FOUR MISHAPS OCCURRED SATURDAY AND LAST NIGHT.

FORTUNATELY WAS NO FATALITIES

J. A. Rhoads Thrown Off Wagon at Third and Harrison—Accident at Ohio and Sixth—Two Other Minor Collisions.

Jacob A. Rhoads, the head of the Rhoads Planing Mill company, and residing at 518 North Grand avenue, while seated in one of the firm's wagons and crossing Third street at Harrison avenue at 7:40 o'clock last evening, was struck by a Third street car, in charge of Conductor Webster, with Motorman Fly on the front end.

He was thrown from the wagon and quite badly lacerated and bruised about the head and legs, although Dr. M. T. Collins, who was called to dress his injuries, pronounced them not of a serious nature unless it should develop that he was internally injured.

One of the delivery wagons of the Boston cafe was also struck by East Sedalia street car No. 104, in charge of Conductor Webster, with Motorman Avery on the front end, at Fourth and Ohio streets at 12:40 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Only slight damage was done to the wagon.

Conductor Young and Motorman Higgins, on the South Grand avenue car, struck a horse and buggy on the track just south of the Country club house last night, doing slight damage. There was no driver with the animal, which was left to wander about on the company's right of way.

One of the delivery wagons of the Barnes-Kem Clothing company was wrecked badly at Sixth and Ohio avenue at 11:20 o'clock Saturday morning by being struck by an East Sedalia street car in charge of Conductor George Webster, with Ed Allen as motorman.

Starr Dunn, the 14-year-old son of Mrs. Sarah Dunn, of 228 South Vermont avenue, was driving the delivery horse east on Sixth street, when he reached Ohio avenue he started to cross the tracks. The animal stopped, then started again.

Just as the vehicle was on the tracks the car struck it, but as the car was going at a slow rate of speed nothing serious occurred beyond the damage to the buggy.

The seat of the wagon and one rear wheel were broken, but the driver, who was pitched to the ground, escaped injury.

WHITE WOMAN ATTACKED

By a Bushy-Headed Negro Who Is Said to Be From Sedalia.

A negro whose home is believed to be in Sedalia is wanted at Holden for an attack upon Mrs. Jennie Mosby, 19 years of age, near her father's restaurant, situated by the side of the Missouri Pacific tracks in Holden, late Friday afternoon. Mrs. Mosby broke from her assailant and fled to the restaurant, after which the negro escaped on a westbound freight train.

The authorities at Pleasant Hill were wired to be on the lookout for the would-be rapist, and when the train stopped there and a negro alighted he was arrested, but he proved to be the wrong man. It is now known there were two negroes on the train, and the one who attacked Mrs. Mosby got away.

A telephone message Saturday to the Democrat-Sentinel stated that was believed the assailant is a Sedalia negro. He has a defect in his eyes, has a bushy head and is said to be a bad man generally.

Did Not Know of Brother's Death.

Luke L. Thomas, years ago a resident of Smithton, now engaged in ranching at Holt, Wyo., arrived here Saturday, on his way to Warsaw to visit his brother, Jesse Thomas. Mr. Thomas has been absent for some years, and on reaching Warsaw learned that his brother had died two years ago.

HOME NEWS WHILE AWAY.

Subscribers of the Democrat-Sentinel away during the summer may have the paper mailed regularly each day to any address at the rate of 45 cents a month. Address changed as often as desired. While out of town the Democrat-Sentinel will be to you like a daily letter from home.

Advance payment would be appreciated on these short time subscriptions, to save the trouble of extra bookkeeping.

FRIENDS IN AFFLICTION.

The Democrat-Sentinel desires, for and in behalf of the president and manager of the paper, to acknowledge his deep sense of appreciation and gratitude to friends all over the city for the kindly sympathy and many courtesies extended him and his family during the late illness and at the time of the death of his mother.

He is especially grateful to the employees of this paper for their display of sympathy and their sending of a large spiral column of rare and beautiful flowers.

NO PAPER TOMORROW.

In compliance with the proclamation of Gov. Joseph W. Folk, declaring Monday, September 2 (Labor day), a legal holiday, there will be no issue of the Democrat-Sentinel tomorrow.

The members of Sedalia Typographical Union No. 206 are to take part in the parade, and as all of the composing room force belong to the union, the management desires to contribute to the enjoyment of its employees and their families by closing the establishment the entire day.

GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION.

The idea of declaring a law constitutionally unconstitutional is something new under the sun. Yet Judge Pritchard, President Roosevelt's appointee to the federal bench, did it in the North Carolina 2 1/2 cent fare injunction case.

The old rule of statutory construction is that every law is prima facie valid and when attacked as unconstitutional the burden of showing it to be so beyond a reasonable doubt rests on the party attacking it.

To enjoin the execution of a law, and postpone the question of its validity to a more convenient season is a copy the tactics of King Agrippa.

GOOD LOGIC, THIS IS.

The democratic leader of the house representatives, Hon. John Sharp Williams, urges democrats everywhere to "emphasize the things that they are agreed upon."

This is sound logic. If two disputants can't agree upon the premises, they can't reason. If they do agree upon the premises, they are also most likely to agree upon the conclusions. Now, we can all agree upon the axioms and definitions of free society, which we call the principles of Jefferson, if we are really democrats, but we shall look in vain for the principle of federal ownership of interstate highways among the principles of Jefferson.

So also we should find in those principles no warrant for governing a people without their consent, or taxing one class for the benefit of another class, or policing weaker nations, or entangling alliances with kings, or expending federal authority by shifty interpretations of the constitution.

In fact, we should find in Jefferson nothing resembling the "policies" of Roosevelt, nothing like the socialistic hallucinations that some democrats are preaching.

Such things, therefore, we ought to forget. Those who will not agree upon the axioms and definitions of free society will find a more congenial lodgment in the socialistic party, or in its progenitor, the republican party. They can not reason with democrats and, therefore, can not reach the same or similar conclusions as a basis of unity.

A DEMOCRAT WHO DOES THINGS.

Among those who are being discussed as likely to be considered for the democratic nomination for president is Robert Broadnax Glenn, governor of North Carolina, who has been prominently before the country for the past month or two by reason of his controversy with Judge Pritchard over the enforcement of the North Carolina railroad rate laws.

Governor Glenn was born on a farm in Rockingham county, N. C., in August, 1854, and is a member of a distinguished family, and received a classical education. Having spent three years at Davidson college and two years at the University of Virginia, he began the study of law in 1875, under Judge Richmond Pearson.

In 1877 he was admitted to the bar, and soon afterwards married and settled at Danbury, in Stokes county, where he practiced his profession for seven years. He then moved to Winston and formed a partnership with Clement Manly.

In 1881 he was sent to the state legislature. In 1885 he was elected solicitor of the Ninth judicial district of North Carolina, and in 1893 he was appointed by President Cleveland to the office of district attorney for the western district of North Carolina. In 1904 he was elected governor of the state. He was a Cleveland elector in 1884, 1888 and 1902. He is regarded as a great lawyer and is devoted to his profession. He has never been a candidate for congress.

As Governor Glenn succeeded in compelling the Southern railway to obey the laws of North Carolina, in spite of the interference of the former attorney of that corporation, who is now a federal circuit judge, he has won the plaudits of all men who favor a stricter regulation of railroads, and that alone would make him an available democratic candidate for any position that his countrymen may select him for.

X-RAY COST FINGER AND LIFE

Maimed Musician Committed Suicide Because of Amputation.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 31.—George M. Arthur, a prominent musician, aged 47 years, shot himself yesterday and died soon after.

He had suffered for months as the result of injuries to locate a piece of wire in his finger.

The finger was burned so badly it had to be amputated, thus destroying his usefulness as a musician.

A CROWN OF GLORY

As Well as a Mark of Beauty Is Luxurious Hair.

It has been truly said that the crowning glory of our race is a luxuriant head of hair.

It used to be thought that this was one of the blessings which the gods bestow capriciously, and it is only recently that scientists have discovered that its beauty is dependent upon the absence of a minute germ which flourishes in the hair follicles, where it destroys the life of the hair.

To restore this life and kill the germs which cause the mischief is the mission of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide surely kills the germs, and is the best hair dressing on the market.

It contains no grease or oil, neither will it stain or dye.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. W. E. Bard Drug Co., special agents.

HER MIND IS A WRECK

Result of Murderous Assault Upon An Aged Woman.

Atchison, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Lucy H. Lee, the aged woman who was struck senseless over the head with some blunt weapon and whose throat was horribly hacked with a dull knife, will doubtless live, but her mind is gone. She left her home Friday morning and was found in a slough a short distance away. She is quite easily managed, does not talk of her injuries and does not recognize any of her friends.

Charles Everhardt, whom she identified as her assailant, was arraigned before Judge Adams of the city court, charged with robbery and assault with intent to kill. His bond was fixed at $2,000 and his preliminary hearing set for September 7.

Mrs. Lee's condition will doubtless render her unavailable as a witness, though her identification before she lost her mind may be sufficient to convict.

"Big Thursday" at Mexico.

The actual attendance at the Mexico fair on big Thursday was close to 11,000 which they claim beats the record of big days for any county fair in the state.

The Ledger's silver cup, offered for the prettiest baby in Audrain county, was awarded to Virginia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrison.

Could Use Him Later.

When "Gipsy" Smith spoke at a banquet the other evening he told a story which, he said, he had brought from England. An old Yorkshire farmer drove into Leeds on a market day behind a rather stolid-looking animal. Pulling up at the door of a business house, he threw the reins over the mare's back and alighted from the cart. A young man in search of a job happened by. "Shall I hold her for you?" he asked. "No," replied the farmer. "She don't need any holding. She'll stand all right." The young man was walking away when the farmer shouted to him. "Hey, there," he said, "you can come back in half an hour and help to start her."

MESSERLY

HELP A MAN SLEEP.

Geography the Best Soporific, Leading to a Drug Clerk.

A guard-looking man strolled through the drug store the other day. He had trouble in getting sleep when he retired. No sleep he might be during the night. How much sleep he might get he was wide awake and for several hours. Once was hard to waken, but he was up at a certain hour, and the drug clerk remarked that he was losing more sleep than he should. The drug clerk replied: "My dear man, need medicine. What you need is to change the thoughts. Do as a friend of mine told me. He was troubled that the old folks' lining sheep passing a barnyard when he was out of began trying to name all the animals. He soon got to sleep. When he no longer was troubled, he started on the study of geography. Now he is starting capitals and their location. He will take up county moment's glance at an atlas and the day shows him when he is and the beauty of the plan is rarely has to think along lines longer than ten minutes he is sound asleep. To make it, the study of geography is a narcotic."

POINT HAD BEEN PROVED.

Need for Young Man to Carry Experiment Further.

A young man who had inherited a fortune from a rich but very eccentric relative decided to live on a commensurate with his great increased income, and was making arrangements to build a fine mansion, an automobile and invest in other expensive luxuries, when an elderly and who had always been one of his advisers undertook to remonstrate with him. "What's this I hear about your squandering the money your uncle left you, Harry?" said the elderly friend. "I am not going to squander it," he answered, "but I'm going to get the good out of it." "It's enough to make him turn over in his grave," said the young man, "but I don't want to prove in his own life that a man could live on a personal expenditure of less than $1,000 a year." "Yes," said the elderly friend, "but I've demonstrated. What is the use of my continuing the experiment?"—Smith's Companion.

CARS COLLIDE; 19 DEAD

NEARLY FIFTY OTHERS INJURED BETWEEN CHARLESTON AND MATTOON, ILL.

WAS CONFUSION IN THE ORDERS

Express Train Carrying Trailer Crowded With Excursionists Tel. Escaped on a Curve by Traction Car.

Charleston, Ill., Aug. 31.—Nineteen persons were killed and forty-seven more or less seriously injured in a head-on collision between an interurban express train, consisting of a motor car and trailer, and a traction car on the Mattoon and Charleston electric line at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning. The crash came on a sharp curve one mile west of this place. A confusion of telephone orders is said to have caused the disaster.

The express was crowded with men, women and children, many standing in the aisles and the vestibule with the motorman, bound for the Coles county fair at Charleston. The cars approached each other at a high rate of speed, and the impact was so terrific that the motor car and trailer were telescoped by the traction car. There was no warning, and few passengers had time to escape by jumping, and the majority of the people in the crowded car were crushed or maimed where they sat in their seats.

As the east bound car and trailer came dashing down the steep grade and around the curve both motormen saw each other and applied the brakes. But the distance was too short. The speed of the cars was not lessened perceptibly when they jammed into each other. The frail upper portions were cut from the trucks as though so much cheese. Bodies were thrown high in the air, intermingled with splintered woodwork and crashing glass.

Charles Potts, motorman on the east bound car, and Ben McClara, motorman on the express car, escaped by jumping just before the crash. Conductor Clark Gucker, on the regular car, was only slightly injured.

Then followed indescribable scenes of suffering and terror. Some of the injured, mad with pain and fright, fled into the fields, while others sought to give temporary aid to those who were injured.

Some of those who escaped and were able to talk said the scene of the wreck was gruesome. The dead and dying were jammed together in a mass. Women were shrieking with pain, and children were crying for mothers who were thought to be among the dead.

When the news of the wreck reached Mattoon special cars were hurried to the scene, and the dead and injured were brought to the morgue and the hospital here. Some of the injured are in a critical condition, and there is little hope for their recovery.

Medical aid was summoned from Mattoon, but in the meantime doctors and nurses had hurried from Charleston. The dead and injured were extracted from the mass of broken timbers and seats. First aid was given the maimed and bruised and the dead were laid alongside the track. The victims could not be taken to Charleston, because the track was blocked in that direction, and consequently were taken to Mattoon.

The line on which the disaster happened is but twelve miles long, running between Mattoon and Charleston, Ill., and has but a single track. Telephones are placed every few miles, at which orders are transmitted to the conductors and motormen of the cars passing over the road.

This is the third serious collision that has occurred on the Mattoon-Charleston interurban line within the past three years. In the first twenty persons were injured on a curve just west of the State Odd Fellows' Old Folks' home in this city. The second took place September 4, last year, at the same place, and one was killed and eighteen injured. Both were head-on collisions.

PIGEONS WALKED BACK HOME.

Admiral Schley Uses Incident to Point a Moral.

Admiral Schley was talking about war and peace at Port Deposit, Md. "War must still go on," he said, "mankind is not yet highly enough developed to be peaceful. Yet I am in favor of peace societies and peace congresses, for these things help the cause of peace along. They bring the day of universal peace a little nearer."

The admiral mused a little. Then he resumed: "Yes, we will have universal peace some day, for we all love it in our hearts. The bravest fighters in their hearts love peace with incredible devotion—with devotion as incredible as that which the pigeons of Newark had for their home."

"There was a Newark man who kept pigeons. One day he sold a half dozen birds to a Philadelphian. But the pigeons loved their former home, and the first time they were let out they flew straight back to it, covering the 50 miles in no time."

"The Philadelphian got them again, and this time he clipped their wings, so that they could not fly. But he left their hutch open, and they disappeared. Nothing was seen of them for some days. Then thin and dusty and footsore, they limped slowly into the old home in Newark."

"They had walked the whole way back."

CHANGE IN MUSIC METHODS.

Enormous Tax on Mental Vigor and Nerve of Modern Musician.

When we compare the thin-toned, delicately constructed spinets and clavichords with a modern grand piano we can only exclaim in astonishment, "What a change is there!" If we could have heard Paderewski give what was considered difficult music in those times on such an ancient musical box, noting what outlay of strength was requisite, and then hear the great artist in the "Sonata Appassionata" on his concert grand, we should be even more astonished at the contrast between the physical endurance required in those days and the modern standard of power. Not only is greater strength required of a performer, but, as Francis Morton points out in the musician, as a consequence of the increased range of tone of which a modern piano is capable the expressive power of piano music has been vastly augmented, making proportionate demands on the mental vigor and nerve force, in addition to the tax on muscular strength.

Parsimony Means Health.

"Did you ever notice," said a prominent physical culture teacher of New York, "that parsimonious people almost always enjoy good health and long life? Eating has a great deal to do with this. We learn that one wealthy person lunches always on a cup of tea and a doughnut; that the great standby of another was apples. "It is not that they eat frugally that accounts for their excellent health, but that there is so much regularity in their diet. The first thing the economical person does, as a rule, is to reduce living to a system. He studies how he can subsist best for the least money, and then allows himself very little variety from the regular order of things."

"Regularity of diet means a great saving of time and money in his eyes, and, whether he knows it or not, in adopting a rule of eating there is nothing which counts so much in building up a robust constitution."

HE WILL PAY ALL DEBTS

STENSLAND, THE CHICAGO MAN WHO WRECKED A BANK, WANTS PARDON.

DECLARES HIS HEALTH BAD NOW

Gives Numerous Diseases Which He Has—Lays Forgeries on Others—Depositors Fight the Application.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—It came as a surprise to the people of Chicago that Paul O. Stensland, the Milwaukee avenue bank looter, has made his personal plea to the state board of pardons for liberty. This took place on Thursday last. The bank wrecker appeared before the board in the narrow office in the steel world of bolts and bars at Joliet, and with fear-stained cheeks prayed for his release, making this astounding promise:

"If released I will pay up all my debts within three years. I have money."

This from the man who looted the Milwaukee avenue bank of $2,000,000 and fled to a foreign land, leaving behind him death and disaster.

Next month the pardon board will take up the case again. It was continued indefinitely, or pending the submission of a report from Trial Judge Kirsten and the prosecuting attorney.

While Stensland pleaded that he be released so that he may make money to repay the depositors whom he impoverished, his friends are making their fight on the grounds that he is dangerously ill.

While Chicagoans were yet refusing to believe that the man was making a serious move to obtain liberty, the convict himself was standing before the board of pardons, making a powerful plea for liberty, although he has served but eleven months.

"I never meant to do wrong," he said, "I got into financial difficulties through unfortunate business deals. I saw that the bank had to go. I could not face the crash. There was $900,000 in cash in the bank. I touched not a cent of that. I had $12,000 which the Northwestern railroad had paid me for work done in connection with the securing of a right of way. That was my money, not the bank's. I took it and fled Chicago. In New York I lay $30,000 due our bank. I did not touch that. I took only the money I had made outside of the bank. I went abroad. I could not face the crash."

"I committed no forgery. Others in the bank were guilty of that. Hering did most of it."

"The stories of women in the case are not true. I was never extravagant. I never wasted money in riotous living."

"My expenses never exceeded $3,000 a year."

The following are a few of Stensland's more serious complaints:

Fatty degeneration of the heart.

Chronic bronchitis.

Emphysema.

Asthma.

Great anemia.

Deficient elimination, general breakdown.

Insomnia.

Great mental anguish.

Tuberculosis (threatened.)

Serious affliction of the eyes.

What Ailed Him.

The village philosopher looked unhappy. "What's the trouble?" asked the village cut-up. "Indigestion," said the philosopher. "I suppose it's the mince pie I indulged in last night." "Mince pie nothing! I know what's the matter with you and I'm not sorry it hurts, either. You're too full of old saws, you are, and it's no wonder they have turned on you at last."

Central Business College Items.

The past week students have been arriving on every train. We anticipated, however, the rush and were prepared to place every pupil in a good boarding place, and start him in his studies, so that when the rush comes next week, every pupil will be carefully attended to and settled in his work so that he will not lose any time.

Twenty-five years in managing a business college has taught us much about giving the pupils superior advantages. Our teachers are kept with us, from year to year, some of them having been teaching in the school for over ten years, so that they understand thoroughly just how to give the pupil the best advantages possible.

Our gymnasium, Y. M. C. A. and reading rooms are being painted, papered and fitted up in the latest and most approved style.

We believe in every school standing on its own merits and succeeding if it deserves to succeed. If, however, after it is tested, it is found wanting, it will fall to stand the crucial test of competition. Central Business college, Sedalia, Mo., has stood this test for almost a quarter of a century and is getting better and more enthusiastic every year.

The principals of the different departments in this institution have all held the highest grade positions with the best of business firms, having practiced what they are teaching the pupil. Hence, the graduate from Central Business college gets his actual office drill and training under teachers who know what to teach him in order to enable him to hold the same kind of positions the teachers have held. Kindly keep your eye on the graduate from this school, and you will see him placed in positions that have been held by experienced stenographers and experienced bookkeepers, and see him successfully hold such positions; while ninety-nine out of one hundred other business colleges have their pupils taught by teachers who have taken a business course, but who have never put into practice what they have learned. A stream can hardly rise above its source. Hence, graduates from such schools must get into actual business and learn the details of actual business before they can fill high priced positions. This is why Central Business college can guarantee to place its graduates in positions at from 50 to 100 per cent higher salaries on leaving school than the same pupil could get after being graduated from any other business college in the state.

We have received fourteen letters the past week from persons asking us to send them stenographers and bookkeepers. We not only send the pupils out in good positions as fast as they are competent to fill them, but the demand is so great for our

STRIKERS ARE FIRM

Issue a Circular Declaring Against a Compromise.

New York, Aug. 31.—In a circular by the officers of the Telegraphers' union it is declared that the strikers will ignore any suggestion of a compromise and stand immovable on all demands.

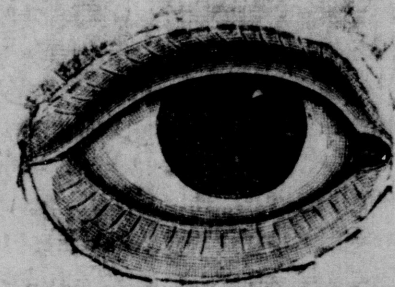

It is also asserted that many strike breakers have left the companies and wholesale desertions are alleged to have taken place from the working forces in the offices. The public is asked to use the mails instead of the wires.

Officials of the two big companies said that the strikers were beginning to make advances with a view of returning to their work.

Laughter the Best Tonic.

Laughter is a good, healthy, muscle-making, lung-developing exercise, and it is as good for girls as boys. And humor can be cultivated in a girl's mind without any abatement of the dignity and modesty and charm of her womanhood. Not the unpleasant and constant frivolity evidenced in "smart" speech or quickness of repartee, but the humor that looks at the world with a twinkle in the eye and sees its absurdities, its smallness and its fun, says a writer. It should be part of every woman's mental equipment, for women are called upon to bear so many of life's small worries as well as its greater ones. The bringing up of children, the care of servants, and the many social duties that become a burden, are all made easy and possible to put up with by the woman with an unflinching sense of humor and of the bright side of life.

BRISK FIGHT FOR A FLAG

THE RACE IN THE IOWA STATE LEAGUE AS PRETTY AS EVER KNOWN.

BUT NOW COMES THE TUG OF WAR

Burlington and Waterloo Running Neck and Neck in the Championship Race—Season Closes
—September 15.

Burlington, Ia., Aug. 31.—President Justin has decided that it will be wise to have two umpires serve at the games played in Burlington and Waterloo. These two teams are fighting hard for the pennant. The series of games here and in Waterloo will probably determine the result, and in order to preserve order and give little occasion to disputes, the two umpire system will be assigned.

By a rush of victories and aided by a run of defeats for Waterloo, Burlington managed to take the lead in the pennant race this week. Meanwhile Burlington has been as low in the scale as fifth place, but Manager Egan and the local fans have not hesitated to insist that Burlington would win.

Oskaloosa, Jacksonville and Quincy are now pressing close behind the leaders, and there is even a chance that Oskaloosa or Jacksonville might take the lead. Three or four victories over the leaders would pull them down.

Quincy has shown a wonderful improvement in its playing and has sent Marshalltown to sixth place in the race. Burlington has but three series of games at home, and then goes to Waterloo, where the supreme struggle of the season will take place. Burlington closes the season at Marshalltown September 13, 14 and 15. Waterloo has a big advantage in the race in having all her closing games at home.

It, however, has a number of postponed games to play, which may cut considerable figure in the result. For instance, if, after the remaining scheduled games are played, Burlington is only slightly in the lead, Waterloo may, by winning a majority of these postponed games, take the pennant.

The present season in the Iowa league has seen some important changes in the ownership of players. Burlington's celebrated Indian outfielder, John House, has been sold to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Another important transfer was that of Kensel, from Oskaloosa to Birmingham of the Southern league. Kensel was the fastest shortstop in the Iowa league. Oskaloosa got $500 for him. Burlington gets $1,000 for House. Marshalltown has sold King to Omaha, of the Western league, for $500.

Manager Egan, of Burlington, will take the management of the Des Moines Western league team next year, while "Babe" Towne, Burlington's first baseman, will assume the management of the Burlington club.

NOT MEANT TO BE UNIFORM.

Expert Explains Why Clocks Fail to Strike Together.

A man in New York whose business is clock winding, which includes also the regulating and cleaning of the family timepieces in his charge, explained the other day why it is hard to have a number of clocks strike together.

"You see," he said, "some clocks are arranged to strike half a minute before the hour, some a quarter of a minute before, others a few seconds after, and so on. Now if I regulate them to strike at the same instant they will not be in agreement in point of actual time, and that is really a more important consideration. Of course, if there are a great many clocks in the house it is likely that several will happen to strike together. For instance, one house on my route has 20 clocks that I look after. Of these, five or six strike in unison and the others all within a minute, excepting one. I have orders to keep 19 of the clocks at exactly the correct time, but the little jeweled timepiece in the bedroom of the mistress of the house is to be kept always three minutes fast. I suppose she has some special reason for that."

"No, I don't get rich at my business, but I make a living at it. The house I just spoke of is an especially profitable one, of course, having so many clocks. They pay me $100 a year for my attendance there, which is given weekly, as it is to all the places I visit."

PLEASURES OF FARM LIFE.

Delightful Occupation for One Who Loves His Work.

It is the farmer's privilege to get as much pleasure—I do not say leisure—out of life as any one, if he loves his work, writes Jared Van Wagenen in the Country Gentleman. I have found much satisfaction in seeing what I could put into the farm in the way of improvement of the buildings, increasing the fertility of the soil and growing more abundant crops each year. The trees I have planted seem like old friends to me. To-day I have the pleasure of seeing them bowed down beneath their load of fruit.

All these things have a value that cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Yet we must get more cash out of our farms than we put into them or they will not be ours long.

We have many of the conveniences of the city home and a good deal purer air, sounder sleep and better digestion. I can see no good reason why I should desire to be anything but a farmer or cease to recommend it to others of like mind.

I would not have any reader imagine for a moment that, as a family, we have not led the strenuous life or that we have felt it any hardship to do so. Rather I may say that we have enjoyed it.

Money, Miss., Aug. 31.—Governor Vardaman, of Mississippi, is hurrying here upon a special train to investigate the killing yesterday of his cousin and the serious wounding of his uncle, and to intervene, if possible and put an end to the family feud which caused the shooting.

The young man killed was James D. Money, Jr., a nephew of United States Senator H. D. Money, and a cousin of the governor. His father, James D. Money, Sr., was wounded so seriously that it is thought he will not recover.

The shooting was done by Dr. Croker Kirby, a leading physician here, and a member of one of the best families of the state.

The Kirby and Money families have been at war for a long time. Several months ago young Money, who was killed yesterday, shot and killed L. J. Henderson, brother-in-law of Dr. Kirby.

Young Money was studying medicine. He was an assistant in the office of Dr. Hamilton, a rival of Dr. Kirby. The young man surrendered to the authorities, was tried and acquitted on the plea of self-defense.

Dr. Kirby swore to avenge the killing of his brother-in-law. His office is on the main street of the town and adjoins the store of Col. Money. Each building has a porch in front.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock young Money was standing upon the porch of his father's store when Dr. Kirby came out upon the porch of his office. The two men were then but twenty feet apart. Angry words passed and Dr. Kirby went into his office and came out with a rapid fire rifle in his hands.

As soon as he came out of the door young Money began shooting at him with a revolver. Dr. Kirby, facing him, raised his rifle to his shoulder and began returning the fire. The first three shots went wild, but the fourth struck the young man and killed him instantly.

Col. Money was inside his store when the shooting began. He knew instantly what it meant. He seized a rifle and ran out upon the porch, stepping over the dead body of his son, which lay upon the porch in front of the door step, and facing Dr. Kirby, he raised his rifle to shoot. Before he could pull the trigger Dr. Kirby shot him and he fell across the dead body of his son, probably fatally injured.

The whole town, startled by the rattle of shots, ran out upon the main street. They saw the two bodies upon the porch of Money's store, and Dr. Kirby upon his own porch, his rifle in the crook of his elbow and as calm and undisturbed as if nothing had happened.

"I shot to defend my life," he said. He surrendered himself to the authorities and was released on his own recognizance. The elder Money, was taken to the Kings' Daughters' hospital in Greenwood and the body of young Money will be taken there. An inquest will be held in Greenwood by Justice D. P. Montgomery.

Picnic Sandwiches.

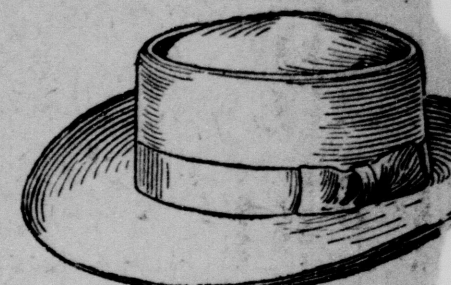

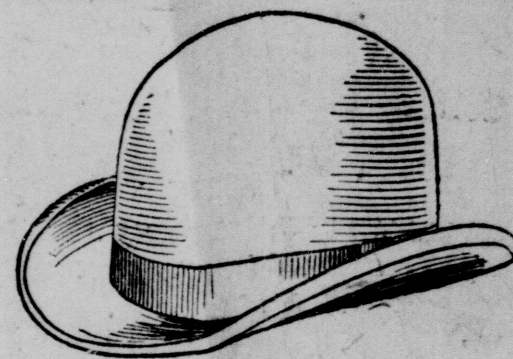

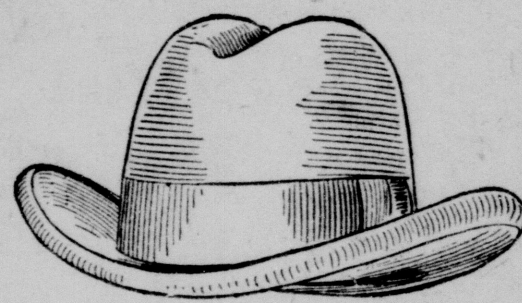

Minced ham is the best for sandwiches. The meat should be finely chopped, and can be mixed with finely chopped sweet pickles and olives. All can be run through a meat chopper and mixed with mayonnaise. Ham mixed with chopped hard-boiled eggs and catsup is tempting for a filling. For home use sandwiches are dainty when mixture is placed between lettuce leaves, then buttered white bread. Chicken sandwiches must be highly flavored, as the meat is tasteless in sandwiches. Chicken is better if mixed with highly seasoned condiments and grated cheese.

Sour Meat.

Soak three pounds of rump roast in vinegar over night or longer, with a few mixed spices. When ready to cook, let kettle get hot; add a large tablespoon of lard; then the meat, salt and pepper; let brown on both sides. Add a large sliced onion, and the vinegar the meat was soaked in. Add a little more spice and water to finish covering meat, boil until tender, and thicken the gravy.

Nasturtium Sandwiches.

To make nasturtium sandwiches, use both the leaves and the flowers, putting them in ice water about half an hour before making the sandwiches, says a writer in What to Eat. A small amount of salt may be used or a thin layer of mayonnaise dressing, but very little seasoning is required, as the plant has a delightful pungency of its own.

THE ROAST OF VEAL

HOW IT MAY BE DISPOSED OF ECONOMICALLY.Presents Fewer Problems Than the Leg of Mutton—Chops and Cut-lets Make Excellent Second Day Dishes.

To the capable housewife, the easy disposal of a roast of veal should be a less serious problem than the economical disposition of a leg of mutton. Even when there are but two mouths to feed, the matter is not one that should tax her ingenuity to any great extent. All that is required is judgment in the selection of the recipes that are to give the appearance of variety to her daily menu, and when it is veal that is the foundation upon which she has to build the choice of tasty and attractive dishes is by no means a narrow one.

The first point to which she must give her attention is the selection of the veal itself, and this is a matter about which she cannot be too careful, as the immature, or so-called "bob" veal is frequently the cause of many intestinal disorders. In spite of the vigilance of the boards of health, a great deal of this unwholesome meat escapes detection and is sold as good veal by unscrupulous marketmen. As such meats may be detected without much trouble, however, there is no reason why an ordinarily intelligent buyer need be imposed upon. Wholesome veal has a pinkish tint, is firm to the touch, and has hard bones. "Bob" veal is of a bluish hue, and seems flabby and sticky when pressed by the finger.

As veal is a meat that does not spoil easily after it has once been cooked, the economical way to purchase a roast is for the housewife to order two or three times as much as she can possibly eat at a single meal. Bought in such quantity the price will be lower, and there is no reason why any of the meat should be wasted. If it is the loin that has been selected, let it be weighed, and then request the butcher to cut off as many chops as may be required for a second meal. If it is the leg that you prefer, have him cut off enough slices of the meat to assure you a few cutlets. In this way the meat for the second meal may be procured at a much smaller cost than would have been possible had the chops or cutlets been ordered separately.

Roast your veal, therefore, and enjoy it just as much as you would if the problem of its disposal did not confront you. Then, when you have eaten enough, put the remains of the roast into the ice-box, and at the next meal serve the chops or cutlets. If you like, you may smother them a la Creole—Jean Marie Devaux in The Delineator.

Buttermilk as a Tonic.

Ordinary sour buttermilk is a better tonic, is a better food than ever was bottled or boxed up by the chemist or doctor. Buttermilk is a hearty food. Two glasses a day is enough for any one. This should be drunk with meals or else should not be taken within two hours of a meal. Time should be given for it to digest thoroughly before anything else is taken into the stomach. It takes buttermilk considerably over an hour to digest, and to drink another glass before the first one is digested is to stir up difficulties with the digestive organs. Really the best way to drink buttermilk is with the meals, though it may be drunk between meals as a sort of easily digested lunch.

FELT HE HAD KICK COMING.

Shopper's Complaint About as Reasonable as Many Others.

While we were going down in the Subway the other morning we met a friend, says a writer in the New York Times. He was standing before an advertisement with a rapt expression on his face—no, gentle reader, that is not Toddler spelling for rapper—and the only greeting he vouchsafed us was "Read the last line of this advertisement." It was an advertisement for a certain make of rubber heels and the line which had, figuratively speaking, caught our friend's eye read as follows:

"For sale at all good stores; 50 cents attached."

"Well, what about it?" we asked.

"Nothing, except that it's a n absolute, downright, indisputable ke," was the response. "I found it out the other day when I bought a pair of them on the strength of this advertisement."

"What was the matter with them?" was our next query.

"Oh, there was nothing the matter with the heels themselves," answered our friend, cheerfully. "But the 50 cents wasn't attached."

Motoring Over the Simplon.

The Swiss passes are gradually being opened to motor traffic. The latest to abandon prejudiced ways is the Simplon, but coupled with this concession to progress the authorities of the Wallis Canton make certain stipulations, including the by no means agreeable one that when meeting pedestrians, cattle or horse-drawn vehicles the man at the wheel must steer toward the outer edge of the road away from the protection of the inner curve toward the usually unprotected side bordering on the precipice.

Considering the dangerous nature of mountain motoring at its best, one may well be excused if this rule does not tend to alacrity in taking this way into Italy, more especially as non-observance of this regulation is punishable by the infliction of fines varying from 50 to 500 francs on first conviction and double that amount afterward. The permit of five francs (thrifty Swiss) can be obtained at the gendarmerie at Brig and Grando, on either side of the pass.

GREAT NAMES IN DIRECTORY.

Many Namesakes of Famous Lights of Literature.

A study of the new London Directory, which this year scales 13 pounds, is extremely interesting. In the case of literature, we are accustomed to regard the names of great authors as ending with them; yet the greatest of English writers has several namesakes scattered over London. William Shakespeare, professor of singing, almost alone carries on the artistic tradition of the name; but there is something quite Elizabethan in the address, "Green Lanes," appertaining to Henry Shakespeare, a grocer. John Bunyan is another grocer, in what Londoners will describe as "the" Edware road. William Blake is a beer retailer, a craft that is far removed from "songs of innocence." Chaucer is a name that seems to have absolutely dropped out. Milton, of course, is fairly common, although the only John Miltons are a ship chandler and a chiroprapist, neither of them poetic avocations. Keats occurs a few times, but there is no John Keats. Curiously enough, there is not a single Keble, but there is one Defoe. The name of Bronte is owned very appropriately by a woman, but she makes clothes instead of novels.

TRAIN WRECKERS' WORK

HAD ANOTHER DISASTER NEAR TULSA, I. T., ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE FOURTH WITHIN SINGLE WEEK

The Texas Fast Mail on the Frisco Ran Into a Burning Bridge—Two Coaches Destroyed, but Only Two Persons Injured.

Tulsa, I. T., Aug. 31.—The fourth wreck in the vicinity of Tulsa within a week resulted last night when the Texas fast mail on the St. Louis & San Francisco railway plunged into a burning bridge.

The engine and two cars were destroyed, but the passenger coaches that were well filled remained on the track. The railway officials believe there is a gang of train wreckers operating in this vicinity.

The train that was wrecked runs between St. Louis and Sherman, Tex. The train was not running at high speed, which accounts for the fact that only two were injured; both of these, C. J. McDowell, of Tulsa, and A. T. Anderson, of Denison, Tex., are in a critical condition.

Even at the speed the train was making the loss of life unquestionably would have been greater had it not been for the fact that the engineer saw the flames from the burning bridge as the train rushed around a long curve.

He attempted to stop the engine, but he saw it would be impossible. He shouted to the fireman to jump, and did so himself. Both were bruised, but are not dangerously injured.

The engine and tender with the combination baggage, express and mail coach and one passenger car were thrown from the track when the engine struck the fallen timbers of the bridge. The two coaches were burned. Much baggage and express was lost, together with $1,500 in money.

WATCHED "POP" STRIKE OUT.

Little Chap Had No Great Faith in His Father's Powers.

The little chap who was dancing up and down beside his mother at the ball game showed an unusual knowledge of the game for a boy so small, and he attracted the attention of every one around. "I guess he'll walk," he'd say judiciously—then three balls had been called, and the crowd listened with wonder at such talk from a boy of only six. "Safe, safe," he'd yell, before any of the men around him could open their mouths, and the crowd's wonder increased, until it developed that he was the son of one of the players on the opposing team.

"Which man is his father?" every one wondered, when the little fellow yelled suddenly as a man went in to bat: "There, there he is, mamma; now watch pop strike out." In vain his mother tried to hush him, but the little man continued to shout knowingly: "Now watch pop strike out."

The crowd watched eagerly and as "one strike" and then "two strikes" were called, it laughed uproariously while mamma's face grew redder and redder. When the third strike was called the little chap's voice rang out triumphantly: "I knew pop would strike out," and while the crowd howled with glee mamma discovered it was time to take her son home.

ROYALTY FORCED UPON THEM.

Roumanian Monarchs Had No Desire for Regal Honors.

Neither King Carol of Roumania nor his queen, known in the world of literature as Carmen Sylva, had any desire for regal honors, and when the assassination of Czar Alexander in 1881 forced them on Roumania's unhappy throne, they went protestingly. Carol finally consented to be king, but declared he would never sit upon a throne nor wear a crown.

The chamber and senate at Bucharest insisted, declaring the people wanted and had a right to expect these symbols of royalty. Carol protested that a coronation ceremony would make himself and his wife ridiculous, "like actors in a play," but was forced to yield and get himself a crown.

But no headgear of silks and precious stones for him. He sent to the arsenal for one of the cannon captured from the Turks, ordered that it be melted down and from its steel a crown be made, "in remembrance of the brave Roumanian blood shed for liberty." And with this he was crowned.

Carmen Sylva said of her husband's crown: "No crown, surely, ever spoke as this one spoke in days gone by, when it roared and thundered night and day, and reeked with smoke and flame."

Dr. G. H. Ehlers and wife, of Kansas City, are visiting relatives here. Miss Bess Nelson returned Wednesday from a three weeks' visit with Mrs. H. L. Paul in St. Louis.

Mrs. George Winston and daughter returned Friday from a two weeks' visit with Sedalia friends.

Miss Maude Cayton is at home, after a delightful visit with Warrensburg relatives.

J. E. Barnett returned Saturday from a two weeks' trip through South Missouri, in the interest of the Home Insurance Co.

Mrs. Ambrose Armstrong and son, of Oak Grove, are guests of the former's parents, M. M. Weekly and wife. Miss Mary F. Berry will go to Independence Friday, where she is a teacher in the city schools.

H. W. Jackson has disposed of his stock of groceries in this city and will remove to the farm east of this city that he recently purchased of Prof. Welborn, of Houstonia.

E. L. Spurgeon and wife have rented the Benning property, in the south part of town, for a year, and will occupy it as a residence the first of October. Mr. Benning going to his property at the foot of Locust street.

A large number of people attended the funeral of Marion Jackson on Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church, among them being many relatives and friends from out of town. Some of the latter were: J. F. Jackson and G. W. Jackson, of Kansas City, brothers of the deceased; Mrs. Fannie Davis and Miss Edna Davis, also of Kansas City; Miss Bessie Carson and mother, of Elmwood; M. K. Lillard and Mrs. Mattie Lillard, of Blackburn.

A concert will be given in the Christian church the evening of September 9th, under the direction of Prof. Ralley Barbour. This entertainment will be first class in every particular and all should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this music of the highest order.

The pupils of the Christian Sunday school are to be given a picnic at Sulphur Springs, two miles north of the city, Tuesday, September 3rd. This is an annual affair, given every year the first week in September, and a good time is anticipated by all.

A picnic was given in the Springs grounds Monday afternoon in compliment to the visitors at the beautiful country home of E. L. Spurgeon, Misses Drysdale and Chinn, of Lexington, and Miss Cromwell, of Kansas City. The charming guests of honor have many friends in this city, who are always glad of an opportunity of meeting them.

Mrs. E. P. Prigmore is in receipt of a telegram from R. W. Prigmore and wife, of Seattle, Wash., who are in New York, stating that they had secured passage on the steamer Lancia, and would sail on Friday for Europe. Mr. Prigmore is attorney for the city of Seattle, and this is the second trip abroad he has made to secure information in a suit pending against that city. On this occasion he declined to go unless accompanied by Mrs. Prigmore, and the city authorities immediately placed the funds at his disposal to cover all expenses of both. Mr. and Mrs. Prigmore grew to manhood and womanhood in this city, and their friends here have never become reconciled to their removal to another state. They have a wide acquaintance in Sedalia, Jefferson City and all this section of the state, and all are glad to know of their well merited success in the city of their adoption.

TO SUE STEEL TRUST

Strikers Want $500,000 for Being Shot and Imprisoned.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 31.—Suits for damages aggregating half a million dollars will be instituted against the steel trust and St. Louis county by striking miners who have been shot or imprisoned by sheriffs.

Armed guards still patrol all trust property and despite the reports to the contrary, the strikers say they are making gains. Two men were shot this week by deputy sheriffs. Within a week twenty strikers have been arrested, charged with rioting, but the charges could not be sustained in the local municipal court.

Teach Swimming and Saves Lives.

But we don't teach swimming, and this is a physical art most of all important. Every school district ought to have a natatorium. Every child ought to be a swimmer before it is six years old. In the Scandinavian kingdoms that one shall learn to swim is as compulsory as that one must learn to read. When this view of the case has been better considered in this country it will be generally adopted. Then we shall not every summer be confronted by a long roll of lost lives which might have been readily saved had swimming been a universal knowledge.

Corked Eggs.

"An ostrich egg," said the sailor, "costs 10 cents in South Africa. It's equal to about two dozen chicken eggs, and lasts close on to a week."

"Out there you open your ostrich egg by makin' a small hole in the point. You shake out as much contents as you need, and then you plug up the opening with a cork and stand the egg away in the refrigerator till it's needed again.

"Plugged carefully, an ostrich egg will supply a week's breakfast omelettes without goin' bad."

"I don't cry any more about anything," said the bachelor girl. "When I get so sad I don't know what to do. I go out and get me something to eat. A little fellow I was very fond of taught me that. He asked me to luncheon with him to talk over a quarrel we were having. During the luncheon I got to crying. I cried over my fish. He ordered me some more fish and scolded me while we were getting it ready. 'Never Frances,' he said, 'as long as you got a good luncheon or dinner before you. It isn't worth while.' CLAIM ERROR KILLED 78

MISCALCULATION IN TENSILE STRENGTH CAUSED HORROR AT BRIDGE.

THE IRON BUCKLED A WEEK AGO

Weight of Girders Had Been Added Daily, and the Theory Is a Heavy Train Strained the Steel Base of the Arch.

New York, Aug. 31.—Had a telegram sent from here Thursday morning been delivered in time, the lives of those killed in the collapse of the cantilever bridge, near Quebec, late Thursday afternoon, might have been saved, according to a statement today by Theodore Cooper, consulting engineer of the work. Following is Mr. Cooper's statement: "My inspector of the bridge work came to the office Thursday morning and told me that things did not look right with the bridge. I immediately sent a telegram to the man in charge to get off the structure at once and stay off until a thorough examination could be made."

Why It Was Bridge Fell.
Quebec, Aug. 31.—That the cantilever bridge collapse Thursday, which is now believed to have cost eight human lives, was due to a defect in the iron of which constructed or an error in the calculations of its tensile strength seems evident from the statement made by Jesse J. Neas, worked on one of the big girders, that a week ago the base of the arch outside the pier buckled slightly, so one had considered this a menace, since the outer end of the big half arch, which reached out in the air, seemed perfectly though the immediate cause of the crash is supposed to have been running of a heavily loaded out to the end, it is evident, this merely hastened the disaster since every hour the weight at outer end of the structure was increased as the huge girders riveted into place. Several engineers visited the scene Friday. It was evident, they said, there had been a miscalculation in the tensile strength in some spot; the weak spot had given way under the strain of hundreds of thousands of pounds of steel, and that this had at once upset the balanced proportions of the structure and caused the collapse.

The two piers appear to be still solid and it is evident that the accident did not occur through the giving way of the masonry, but seems to have been caused by the weight of iron, about 700 feet of the bridge giving way.

E. A. Hoare, chief engineer of the bridge company, has discovered nothing that he was willing to communicate. So carefully, Mr. Hoare said, he seen all the work executed and watched that it was most difficult to see where the defect could have been.

The terrific drop of the great structure from 180 feet above the surface of the river crushed the bodies of the workmen in a frightful manner, and it is feared many of them will never be found. Many of the dead were Americans brought here by the Phoenix Bridge company, of Phoenixville, Pa., which had the contract for the iron work on the bridge.

Friday bridge employees were busy looking for bodies among the piles of iron which fell on the shore. Women were sitting on logs, weeping, and as a body was brought ashore there was a wild rush to see if it was that of a lost relative. As the bodies were found they were carried to one of the company's buildings. The number of dead victims, as stated at the office of the Phoenix Bridge company Friday, is eighteen Canadians, twenty-eight Indians and seventeen Americans, but the officials would not venture to give out any names just at present. They also state that five Canadians, four Indians and three Americans are injured. The Quebec Bridge company officials place the number of dead at seventy-eight. The bodies will be brought here by steamer and an inquest will be held.

WILLIE HAD HEADED ORDER. Garment of His Friend Tommy Jones Came in Handy.

There is a certain little boy who will be known to fame as Willie Smith, simply because his name is neither Willie nor Smith. He has a friend whom we will call Tommy Jones for the same good reason.

Willie Smith is very fond of going swimming, and, tradition to the contrary, he goes with his mother's permission. His papa visited the "swimming hole," as such places are usually called when patronized by small boys, and certified that there was no danger, so Willie is allowed to go whenever he pleases. But one day not very long ago he developed a bad cold as the result of the bath.

"With what did you dry yourself when you came out of the water?" asked mamma, who vaguely remembered that she did not remember having seen her small son take a towel with him when he went on the swimming expedition.

"I used my shirt," he explained. And mamma realized that her young hopeful caught his cold by wearing the wet shirt the remainder of the day, so she told him never, never to do it again.

The next time he went swimming, mamma noted that no towel was brought home.

"Willie," she said, severely, "I told you never to go without a towel. How did you get dried?"

"Oh, I used Tommy Jones' shirt."

GETS EDUCATION IN AMERICA.

Daughter of Chinese Minister Is to Enter College.

Chinese women who have been educated in America will receive a distinguished recruit when Miss Yang Chang, the only daughter of Sir Cheung Liang-Cheng, the Chinese minister to the United States, returns to her native land.

Miss Chang is a particularly bright young woman and has attracted much attention in Washington. It is announced that the piquant little Celestial maiden will be educated in Barnard college, although it is said Wells college, Aurora, N. Y., is a possible candidate for the honor of instilling the ideas of western civilization in the pretty Miss Liang's head. Wells college is the alma mater of Li Hung Chang's granddaughter, Miss Li, now Mrs. Hien.

Miss Chang is under sweet 16 and dresses in oriental style, as becomes the daughter of the Chinese representative to this country. She speaks English and has shown marked ability in music.—Broadway Magazine.

Something of a Comet on the Way.
Those of us who live three years or so longer may expect to see a comet compared with which our present visitant is scarcely worth mentioning.

This wonder of the skies is "Halley's Comet," which, after its mighty circuit through space, has for centuries paid us regular visits at an interval of about 75 years. On its last appearance, in 1835, its brilliant disc and flaming tail, spanning the heavens like an arch of fire, created the greatest excitement.

Another remarkable comet of last century was that of 1811, which for several weeks blazed brilliantly in the northern sky. This comet, which was credited with a tail 200,000,000 miles long, more than long enough to encircle the earth 8,000 times, narrowly escaped a collision with the sun, only 32,000 miles separating their surfaces.

The comet of 1861 was chiefly remarkable for the fact that the earth passed—without anyone being a whit the worse—through its tail.

Tree Doctors.
Prof. George E. Stone, who is in charge of the work, writes as follows concerning the course in tree culture given at the Hatch Experimental station of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, Amherst, Mass.:

"At the present time we have seven senior students who are taking work in a course which I term the 'Physiology and Pathology of Shade Trees.' So far as I know this is the only course given in this country or anywhere else, and we are turning out quite a few young men who are especially trained to fill intelligently such positions as city foresters or helpers in parks.

"Many of our men at the present time have established firms for the care of trees, and all of them are meeting with remarkable success, some of them employing as many as 200 men. I started this course ten years ago at the request of students, and have been surprised at the way in which it has developed."—Park and Cemetery.

WED FORTY-TWO YEARS

JUDGE DAVID KINSEY AND WIFE CELEBRATED THEIR ANNIVERSARY SATURDAY.

WERE MARRIED AT DAYTON, OHIO

Couple Came to Missouri Nineteen Years Ago, and for the Past Sixteen Years They Have Lived in Sedalia.

Judge David Kinsey and wife Saturday celebrated the forty-second anniversary of their marriage, which was solemnized at Dayton, O., by the late Rev. Winters, exactly forty-two years ago at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

It was with pride that the esteemed judge related the incidents of his marriage and other happenings of his life since he took unto himself a bride.

Mrs. Kinsey was, before her marriage, Miss Amanda Ulery, of Dayton, daughter of Moses Ulery, a prominent retired farmer, now living near Dayton.

Nineteen years ago Judge Kinsey and wife came to Missouri and settled at Warsaw. They remained there three years, then removed to Sedalia, where they have resided since.

Of the children born of the union eight are still living, the oldest being Ira Kinsey, now residing in Oklahoma, who formerly was a well-known engineer on the Katy.

Judge Kinsey will be 63 years old on July 8, next, while his wife is four years his junior. Mrs. Kinsey's father is 82 years old and is said to be still hale and hearty.

Judge Kinsey has led a rather eventful life, the principal event being his service in the civil war. According to his own story, he served in many skirmishes, and one particular skirmish the judge relates with fire in his eye.

"We were about to engage in a battle with the rebels," continued the judge, "when I suddenly looked around and saw no one except myself and one other soldier. The rebels were pressing upon us, and the only thing to do was to get away."

"There was a rather steep hill to climb directly ahead, so I made a dash up the hill and finally escaped."

"Some time afterward I met the other soldier who was there with me when I fled. He asked me why I ran, and I promptly replied, 'My God, I ran because I couldn't fly. That's the reason I ran.'"

It was a pretty good reason, too, and the judge laughed as he recalled the experience.

Surveyor and Panther.

A surveyor employed by the St. Louis, Bartlesville & Pacific Railroad company, which purposes to build a line from Joplin, Mo., to Pond Creek, Okla., saw a remarkable sight through the glass of his transit instrument while running a survey on Sand creek, 15 or 16 miles northeast of Pawhuska, in the Osage Indian reservation, recently. The country at that place is broken and indented with canyons.

The surveyor had turned his instrument to see the flagman behind him. The flagman was seen plainly, but beyond the flagman about 300 yards was something that caused the surveyor to gasp in astonishment. A large panther at the edge of a small clearing was gazing intently at the surveyors. Through the glass the panther's every movement could be clearly seen. The surveyors shouted at the beast, which quickly ran into the timber.

Appropriate Name.

Sitting at a window of their law office, which looks out on Willis creek, Attorneys, Creed Wilson and A. T. Smith saw a shaggy little dog, swept by the swollen stream, scramble into a hole in the retaining wall on the opposite bank. They supposed it had reached safety. The next day the lawyers again saw the imprisoned animal peering appealingly from the hole, says a Cumberland, Md., special in the Pittsburgh Leader.

"Wilson, let's save that dog," exclaimed Smith.

The two lawyers rowed across the stream. With a joyful yelp the dog jumped into the skiff and accompanied the men to the office, where he was fed.

"We'll keep him and we'll call him 'Client,'" observed Wilson.

"Client?" echoed the other, wondering.

"Sure," responded Wilson. "Didn't we get him out of a hole?"

JUDGED BY THEIR CATS.

Irish Maid's Unique Way of Estimating Employers' Character.

"No, ma'am," said an Irish maid of much experience as she returned to a New York intelligence office the other day. "I didn't engage with that family. I didn't like the looks of their cat."

"Of their cat?" repeated the owner of the office in amazement.

"Why, Katie, I'm sure they wouldn't keep a cat that was in any way dangerous." "Not dangerous, no, ma'am, but a restless, unhappy looking creature that didn't speak well for the family," replied the girl. "I always judge a family by their cat. A sleek, comfortable pussy who comes up and rubs against you means a quiet, good-natured family, and one that's not worrying about ways and means; but a nervous, unfriendly looking cat reflects a household which is on the verge of nervous prostration or financial ruin or some other horrible trouble. I've been living with families and studying their cats for 25 years, and I've never known the sign to fail. A family that can't make its cat happy is one to make any servant miserable."

YELLS WERE HARD TO MASTER.

College Man Tells of Trouble He Had with Students.

"I can sympathize with that Dr. Stealer, who taught the Harvard college yell to 200 students of the Berlin university," said an old college man. "To train the students of one college in the yell of a rival institution of learning is no easy job. I once undertook to educate a band of youngsters in the different college yells, so in case they were ever required to give a complimentary greeting to instructors from other colleges, they would be equal to the occasion. I never worked so hard in my life. Either the boys were physically unable to twist their tongues around strange war cries or loyalty to their own school held them back; anyway, it required a tremendous amount of hammering to bring them to the point where a visiting professor would recognize his own yell when he heard it. That is why I sympathize with Dr. Stealer. Having to train students in a yell in a foreign language must have been an especially hard task."

Blind Fiddler Arrested.

Larkin Piggs, the blind fiddler, was arrested for drunkenness by Deputy Constable Billy Drake Saturday night and locked in jail, pending trial.

A Growing School is a Live School

THREE FACTS AND A CONCLUSION

1. During last year we enrolled more students than any year in the history of the college.
2. During August of last year we enrolled the most students of any month in the year.
3. During August, 1907, our enrollment was double that of August of last year.

CONCLUSION

The reason for this remarkable growth is a growing appreciation of the splendid work we are doing, the efficiency of students and the good business principles on which the college is run.

WEDDING GIFTS

The Happy Bride Takes an Inventory

The bride had returned from her trip and was about to spend a long, happy morning looking over her wedding presents and finding out what she had really received. Before the great day she had been so excited and rushed that she had no time to examine her treasures closely, although she remembered, as in a dream, writing a large number of notes of acknowledgment. Then, too, 70 gifts had come after she had gone away.

The bride went into the room where the presents were arranged on all the tables the house afforded and two borrowed from neighbors, and separated the sheep from the lambs.

The first thing which caught her eye were a number of punch glasses. She counted them and found there were 40 in all.

"They will be awfully nice when you give a ball," said her sister, who was accompanying her on this voyage of discovery.

The bride admitted that they would. "But you see, dear," she said thoughtfully, "our apartment has only five rooms and a bath, and the little library table is but 16 by 20 feet, so that it will probably be some years before I can invite 40 people to take dinner with me, or even give a 'small and early' dance to that number."

The sister giggled, and they inspected the coffee spoons, which came next on the table. There were 48 coffee spoons, and the bride sorted them into little groups and looked them over admiringly.

"I will use them by turns," she said. "This set first, then that, and so on."

"Why not have them exchanged for something else?" asked the sister.

"I don't think that would be nice," replied the bride, primly.

There were 17 cut-glass bonbon dishes and 20 bonbon spoons. There were 36 silver knives which the bride said were pie knives and her sister declared should be used either for ice cream or fish, or both, as occasion demanded.

There were 11 clocks.

"We can put two in each room," said the bride, "and I mustn't forget to go downtown this very afternoon and buy a dollar alarm clock to waken George in the morning."

"These are the puzzles," explained the sister, as the twain approached a table laden with silver implements. "Each member of the family has been given three guesses as to the identity of each but we haven't succeeded in making them all out yet."

The bride took up the implements one by one, knitted her brows and puzzled over them.

"This looks to me like something to eat asparagus with," she said, referring to a garnished specimen.

"Oh! we've guessed that," replied the sister; "that is a combination cork-screw and bottle-opener and ice pick, and it is solid silver. It was easy, but just try your brains on this."

"This" resembled nothing so much as a dynamite bomb with a fussy top. It was evidently intended as a receptacle for some special thing, but what the bride could not make out in the least. There were all sorts and conditions of forks and pronged things which were not particularly ornamental and would only be useful if the owner knew to what to apply them. "I should like to see them to a jeweler and have him explain their uses," said the sister.

"I will," acquiesced the bride. "Perhaps he will know, though I doubt it. Did I get any doilies or embroidered things for the table?"

"No, but you are the happy owner of 11 lamps."

"And there is both electric light and gas in the apartment. Still, when we build a summer home they will come in nicely. I hope we received some pictures."

"No, no pictures, but 14 trays of various sorts and conditions."

"Any furniture?"

"Certainly not; people don't give such things, but you received 11 pepper pots."

"We will certainly have a spicy life," sighed the bride. "I had hoped some one would send me a tea table."

"It seems to me you are awfully ungrateful," said the sister.

"I am not," contradicted the bride. "I love everything I have. They are all perfectly lovely, and I wouldn't part with one of them for the world."

"I am merely taking an inventory. Tell me what I will do. I will go right down town and find out what these things are intended for and—er—er—if you don't think it would be dreadful, I will take a basketful of duplicates along and exchange them for articles I did not get. You are sure you don't think it will be dreadful?"

But what will the givers say when they come to call and don't find their gifts? You honestly don't think it will matter? Well, then, come with me and we will exchange the lamps for tablecloths and some of those silver spoons for a bread tray, and seven pie knives for a carving set. I don't expect to have a great amount of pie—George doesn't like it."

India's Great Summer Resort.

The season for business and pleasure in Simla and the other summer resorts in the Himalayas is from the middle of April to the end of September. During that period the government is removed from Calcutta to Simla. During the hot months there are 4,000 white people in Simla; the rest of the year only 400.

Overpaid Austrian Official.

That no sum is too small to be taken into account by the lynx-eyed Austrian officials is evident from an incident reported from Bregenz. The tax office there has just received a formal notice from the high court of justice at Innsbruck stating that an investigation of the accounts of the Bregenz tax office for 1906 shows an overpayment of one heller (one-tenth of a penny) in the salary of one of the officials.

The notice directs that the official be required to refund this sum, which must then be duly entered in the state accounts for the current year. A Vorarlberg paper publishes a facsimile of this interesting document, and gravely expresses the hope that the extra heller has not led the overpaid official into paths of extravagant dissipation.

A Real Distinction.

A young matron of New York is the only one of her family who is not in "Who's Who," her father being a well known clergyman and her mother, brother and sister being more or less celebrated writers. One day her sister was confiding with her on her lack of distinction in this respect. "Never mind, Belle," said the literary sister; "you may not be in 'Who's Who,' but you're the only member of the family who is in the telephone book, and that costs real money."

SKY TELLS THEM MUCH.

Heavens Like an Open Book to Men Who Follow the Sea.

There is probably no class that can tell more as to what the weather will be from a glance at the sky than seafarers. This is the natural result of their constant observance of the heavens for the lack of something else to look at when at sea. Thus the sky becomes to the mariner an open book, which he reads by instinct as does a child the face of its parent. A navigator will tell you that a rosy sunset presages fine weather; a sickly looking, greenish hue, wind and rain; a dark or Indian red, rain; a red sky in the morning, bad weather or much wind, perhaps rain; a gray sky in the morning, fine weather; a high dawn, wind; a low dawn, fair weather. Remarkable clearness of atmosphere near the horizon, distant objects, such as hills, usually visible or raised by refraction and what is called a good "hearing day," may be mentioned among signs of wet, if not wind. A landsman is much more ignorant of the signs of the sky, as he has so many other things to distract his attention that he seldom takes much notice of its different phases, which fore-shadow so clearly what may be expected in the way of weather.

THE JOKE WAS ON HER.

Comparison Made by Woman Lawyer Left Opening for Opponent.

A woman member of the bar in New York gives the following correspondence with the reservation that no names shall be quoted: "I am one of the few women," she says, "who can see a joke even if aimed at myself. I do not feel that in this case I came off first best." The letter was from a man lawyer and was as follows: "Dear Miss Blank: We agree to the compromise as promised in your favor of this date. Not because your client has a just right to such settlement, but from the fact that we do not care to open a contest with a woman lawyer." To which the reply was sent: "Gentlemen: I note yours agreeing to a settlement, although I cannot congratulate you on your gallantry in begging the question. Like the original Adam, you seem inclined to hide behind a woman's petticoat." And the following letter closed the correspondence: "Dear Miss Blank: If you will turn to the early pages of Genesis you will discover that Eve did not wear a petticoat."

Fishhawk Gives Up Prey.

Alec Canova brought a three-pound trout to the Record office the other morning and gave a very interesting description of the manner in which it was caught. His son Frank observed a big fishhawk swoop down on the fish near Bar Creek, about a mile and a half north of town, and noted that the fish was of very respectable size. He watched the big bird until it hovered almost overhead, but within close range, and he picked up a stone and with splendid accuracy hurled the missile at the hawk, striking it. The bird dropped the trout and Frank ran forward and took charge of it. The head was torn open, but the body was uninjured except for the punctures made by the talons of the hawk.

The Kind You Have Always Bought of
J. H. P. H. H.

NOT long ago a fellow said, "Mr. Crawford, what's the use to pay you sixty cents a case for soda water when the other fellow sells me for fifty cents?" Yes, said I, you buy the fifty cents kind. He said: "Well, I'll admit you make the best and that I have lots of calls for your goods; but when I haven't got them they usually take something else."

Now, that fellow is a failure as a business man, because he can't see the wisdom of buying a good article at a fair price.

Mr. dealer, if you are in his class better get right by buying Crawford's famous bottled soda water. It's the best—and it pays best to handle the best.

TALK OF CIRCUS MERGER

THE RINGLINGS ARE SAID TO BE AFTER THE BARNUM & BAILEY SHOW.

THIS IS THE REPORT IN NEW YORK

Ringling Bros. Are Money Makers, and It Is Believed They Could Produce All the Capital Required.

New York, Aug. 31.—Concerning a report current that Ringling brothers aspire to control the principal circus business of the world and are negotiating to get the majority of stock in the Barnum & Bailey show, which is owned by the widow of the late James A. Bailey, J. T. McCadden said that there had been no option given, as reported, but he did not deny that negotiations were in progress.

Further than saying that his sister, Mrs. Bailey, had not contracted to sell her control of the circus and that he, as the next largest stockholder, had not disposed of his share of stock, Mr. McCadden was reticent about the report.

Besides the show under their own name the Ringlings own the Forepaugh-Sells circus.

The Barnum & Bailey circus ownership carries with it a contract with Col. W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," to present him in this and other countries. With the acquisition of the Barnum & Bailey show the Ringlings would control the circus business of the globe.

The question of the great amount of money necessary to finance such an undertaking arises.

The Ringlings would have to secure an amount of cash which would tax the coffers of a Monte Cristo to accomplish their reported ambition to control the circus business of the world.

They are wealthy men and money makers and it is believed that they could get together all the capital needed.

A "TEDDY BEAR" PARTY

Was Given in Honor of Little Girl From Springfield.

Miss Crissie Guilien and Mrs. Rose Doherty gave a "Teddy Bear party" at their home on West Fourth street Saturday afternoon in honor of their niece, Little Mary Gillespie, of Springfield, Mo.

Different games were enjoyed, and in a contest of pinning the cherries in the Teddy Bear's mouth, the first prize, a statue of a spitz dog, was awarded to Helen Archias, and the booby prize, a jumping jack, went to Christine Landmann.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and the guests all departed, having spent a delightful afternoon.

Those present were: Margaret McGinley, Veronica Miers, Louise Loos, Katherine Riley, Florence Landmann, Helen Archias, Eula Logan, Hazel Logan, Edith Archias, Rhoda Kolbohn, Charlotte Tilden, Dorothea McCutcheon, Ruth Yanow, Frances Adams, Christine Landmann, Irene Berry, Estelle Weisenbach, May English, Helen English, Catherine Cadle and Hazel Muckey.

REGARDING RAILROADS

THE "KATY" HAS A FINE VOLUME OF TRAFFIC AND SHOWING IS SPLENDID.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Adrian H. Joline, chairman of the board and president of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad company, will leave the city today on his return to New York, says Saturday's St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Yesterday he remained at the general offices in the Wainwright building in conference with Vice President and General Manager Allen, Vice President and Traffic Manager Haile, Comptroller Maguire and the heads of the departments.

He has just completed an extended tour of the Pacific coast from Portland to San Diego, accompanied by his family, and he had ample opportunity to observe general conditions in the far west.

He can see no clouds on the horizon, but, on the contrary, there are evidences of abundant and abiding prosperity on every side, and there is no real cause for apprehension as to the future.

On the eve of a national campaign there is always more or less alarm in financial circles, and this is reflected to a large extent at the great money center, New York; but conditions in the west and southwest are full of promise for continued general prosperity, and it would seem that the limit has been reached in the legislative attacks upon the railroads. There is a better feeling everywhere in that regard.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas' earnings continue to make a fine showing and there is a heavy volume of traffic in sight at all distributing points.

Railroad Board Can't Agree.

The board of railway and warehouse commissioners is unable to agree on a report concerning a recent inspection of about 400 miles of the Iron Mountain track.

Commissioners Wightman and Oglesby can agree, but Commissioner Knott has a different opinion, and a dual report is anticipated, as was the case when the commission recently inspected the Missouri Pacific.

Col. Knott, who edits a paper at Hannibal and is not a railroad man, entertains entirely different views as to what constitutes a safe railroad track from Commissioners Wightman and Oglesby, both of whom are practical railroad men, with years of experience to their credit.

Granted Leave of Absence.

Dr. A. J. Campbell, surgeon at the Missouri Pacific shops, has been granted a vacation lasting several weeks, and leaves today for a visit with home folks at Clinton, Ark., which he will visit at Chicago and at points in California during his absence. Dr. O. T. Moore, of St. Louis, will act as surgeon at the shops.

During the month of August over 300 Missouri Pacific employees were treated at the Missouri Pacific temporary surgical station, while only 290 were treated last year.

Mexico to Mix in Strike.

All firemen on the Chihuahua division of the Mexican Central railroad are on strike and train service on that division is tied up.

The men have been out since last Friday night a week ago.

As the mails are held up in consequence of the strike, the government is expected to take a hand in settling the matter.

Missouri Pacific Earnings.

Following are the Missouri Pacific earnings for June:

Gross earnings, $4,631,319; increase, $426,417. Net earnings, $1,299,719; increase, $226,446. From July 1, 1906, to June 30, 1907: Gross earnings, $43,703,342; increase, $4,136,521. Net earnings, $16,188,272; increase, $1,902,857.

Harry Pace, agent for the Katy at Beaman, returned there Saturday morning, after attending a social function Friday night.

Mater Mechanic M. J. McGraw, of the Missouri Pacific, went to St. Louis last afternoon to spend the Sabbath with his family.

George Young, Missouri Pacific hostler, who has been laying off for three weeks, reported for work Saturday, relieving Fireman Bilbo.

Two non-union pipe fitters, who have been employed at the Missouri Pacific shops, resigned Friday.

So far the Katy and Missouri Pacific have made no arrangements for running trains to and from the fair grounds during the coming fair.

Walter Merrifield, Missouri Pacific trainmaster, returned last night from a day's business visit at Lexington and at points on the branch.

Jack May, foreman of a machine gang at the Missouri Pacific shops, and Arthur Yontz left Saturday afternoon for a brief visit at Pueblo, Col.

Henry Esser, a Katy fireman, who has been on the sick list for some time is gradually getting well, but will not resume work for some time.

James Robb, messenger for the Pacific Express company on Nos. 27 and 38, will lay off today, and Walter Jenkins will take charge of the run.

J. W. McClain, city passenger and ticket agent for the Missouri Pacific, wife and daughter, Miss Dorothy, returned Friday night from Kansas City.

M. W. Anderson, traveling auditor for the Frisco railway, with headquarters at Fort Worth, Tex., returned there Friday night, after visiting relatives here.

Missouri Pacific train No. 5, due here at 4:45 p. m., arrived at 5:40 o'clock last afternoon, due to leaving Kansas City behind time, and also the heavy train.

T. P. Madden, foreman of the Missouri Pacific boilermaking department, wife and daughter, left Saturday afternoon for Wichita, Kan., for a two days' visit.

Ed Holland, former night baggage master for the Missouri Pacific, wife and two children, left Friday for a visit of several days with relatives at Fort Scott, Kan.

Pitkin Stanley, employed in the civil engineering department of the Frisco railway at Cape Girardeau, Mo., who has been here to attend the funeral of his grandmother, returned to work Saturday.

George Young and Charles Whitely, Missouri Pacific engineers, recently promoted from firemen, left Saturday night for St. Louis to run out of that place. Addis Fifer and E. F. Lewis, two recently promoted engineers, left last night for Jefferson City to work out of there.

THE CURB BROKERS WON

Lawyer Said They Made Noise and Hurt His Business.

New York, Aug. 31.—Justice Day, of the supreme court, has denied the application to oust curb brokers from Broad street.

A lawyer asserted that the brokers made so much noise that they interfered with his business.

Secures a Chicago Trimmer.

In addition to the present force of salesmen and salesladies at M. Chasnoff's, the West Second street dry goods merchant, the services of a Miss Johnson, a designer and trimmer, have been secured.

Miss Johnson comes from Chicago, where she has been employed at the Edson-Keith millinery store. She is an expert in her line and will be a valuable acquisition at Chasnoff's, where she will have exclusive charge of the millinery department. Miss Johnson has also held a position with the Liebster Millinery Co., at Kansas City.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite, but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in a fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by Arlington pharmacy.

Walter Hailer Heard From.

Miss Clara Lutman, clerk at the Sedalia Drug company store, received a card Saturday from Walter Hailer, son of Mrs. William Hailer, who left here several months ago for the Jamestown exposition. The card was sent from Buffalo, N. Y., and Walter said he would leave the latter part of September for New York City.

A CLUB HOUSE FOR SALE

THAT OF THE FAMOUS RICHARD CANFIELD AT SARATOGA, NEW YORK.

WAS ONCE GAMBLERS' PARADISE

Represents an Expenditure of $800, 000—Resort Loses Money—Are No "Spenders" in Attendance Nowadays.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Richard Canfield has decided to shake the dust of Saratoga from his feet, and this watering place will know him no more.

Hundreds who drove to his beautiful grounds yesterday were confronted by huge signs which ran as follows: "This plot of ground, and all the buildings thereon, for sale."

Mr. Canfield was seen in his club house, which for a week has been practically deserted because there are no spenders here now. He said:

"This place is for sale because, as it is seen now, it is a dead loss to me. I usually run the restaurant in the month of August at a loss of about $10,000. This year the loss will be about $20,000, and I intend to sell for whatever I can get for the place. I have no price. The place cost about $800,000, and I intend to sell it."

The ground upon which the famous Saratoga club is situated was bought in lots at different times. There are about forty parcels of land, originally most of it swamp and forest land.

The perfect drainage put in at an enormous cost and thousands paid to landscape gardeners has made it one of the most picturesque and beautiful spots in America. As a gambling resort the place paid, but as a restaurant and pleasure garden it was a big financial failure.

Then men who spent their money there and made Canfield's success were New Yorkers, with an occasional "high roller" from Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago. The stringency in the money market and the uncertainty in the price of stocks has kept the New York spenders at home; therefore, Canfield wants to sell.

The place is about eleven acres in extent, a large part of which is a park made beautiful with fountains and flower gardens. The owner does not expect to sell it for what it is worth, but he has made up his mind to sell at some price, and that soon.

Will Teach Near Nelson.

Prof. C. W. Bente left Saturday for Nelson, Mo., near where he will teach again this year. Charlie taught the same school last year and received as large a salary as was paid any teacher of a country school in the state. That he was re-elected shows that he gave satisfaction to the board of directors.

Will Entertain at Cards.

Mrs. D. J. Temple and daughter, Mrs. Irene Temple Potter, will entertain at cards at her home Monday in honor of Mrs. Stanley Hill, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Paul Huckins, of Texarkana.

NOT AN ESCAPED CONVICT

Mistakes Jewelry Peddler for Notorious; Kansas, Desperado.

Leavenworth, Kas., Aug. 31.—It developed last night that the man arrested by the sheriff at Osceola, Neb., and brought to the Kansas penitentiary today by Chaplain J. D. McBrien and John Higgins, the parole officer, is not Bea Cravens, the notorious desperado, but Albert Clay Settler, an itinerant jewelry peddler.

Settler maintained from the time of his arrest that he was not Cravens, and that he had never heard of such a man. When brought to the penitentiary his actions indicated that he had never been in prison. He gave Warden Haskell a full account of his life, starting from the time he was born in Ohio. Settler was not put in prison clothing and was held at the hospital.

The prison officials know now that Settler's story is true, as to his identity, and he was offered his liberty. He asked to be kept all night, and will be returned to Nebraska or any place he desires to go. This is the sixteenth time the prison officials have been informed of the capture of Cravens, but they propose to keep up the hunt for him.

KATY PRESIDENT TALKS

BLAMES PUBLIC DELUSION FOR TWO-CENT RATE AGI-TATION.

THE QUESTION OF "FREE" PASSES

President Joline, of the M., K. & T., Ridicules Legislative Rate Making—Know Nothing Regarding the Matter.

Adrian H. Joline, John D. Rockefeller's lieutenant in the management of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, talked to a Post-Dispatch reporter in St. Louis Friday, about "popular delusions," in the office of General Manager Allen in the Wainwright building. He is in St. Louis after a western trip over the Katy tract.

"There are several popular delusions about 'railroads,'" Mr. Joline told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "One of them is that the road is eager to give rebates. That's absurd."

"A railroad is going to take all it can get from a shipper. Personally, I cannot see why a railroad should not charge a little less when a man ships great quantities of a commodity than it would if he shipped only a few cases. But if it is wrong, the railroads are glad to quit. They only want to be sure every railroad will quit."

"Another popular delusion is that railroads make lots more money when they quit giving passes. I am informed by competent traffic men that in Texas, where the law against issuing passes is most stringent, that it makes practically no difference in the receipts. A great many passes issued are never used, and those who do receive them travel less without them, so that the difference is not pronounced."

"But the most remarkable delusion is that a set of men ignorant of railroad business are qualified to regulate railroad rates."

"State legislatures are not fitted by training or experience to decide whether it is fair and advantageous in a business way to have a 2-cent passenger rate, but they have passed laws imposing that rate on the railroads in some states."

"If I should decide that a grocer should sell certain commodities at a certain price it would be thought absurd, but people never seem to think of this as applied to a railroad."

"It ought to be self-evident that railroads cannot carry passengers at the same rate in all parts of the country, and that the 2-cent rate must result disastrously in some places. The Texas legislature sensibly defeated such a bill because in a sparsely settled state passengers cannot be carried at 2 cents a mile. In my opinion, the regulation of rates should be left to competition between the railroads, which will result in an equitable adjustment."

"In Missouri, I find, the supreme court has ruled that the 2-cent rate should be tried on the log for a certain period. If the log doesn't die, it is to be made a permanent diet."

"It has been my observation," he said, "that the amount of traffic is due to the people's desire to travel, and not to the price charged. If you increase facilities, traffic will increase. When the elevated railroads were constructed in New York, the surface lines fought them, but subsequent developments showed that the surface lines lost practically nothing—the travel increased in proportion to the facilities."

"This is not true as to prices, and I am satisfied that the railroads lose practically one-third of their passenger receipts when a 2-cent fare is substituted for a 3-cent fare."

"Our tables are not completed, but our traffic men say there has already been a sharp falling off in the passenger receipts. The west out here is so prosperous that the receipts are constantly increasing, but the ratio of increase has dropped."

"The people, someone has said, go through three phases of feeling toward railroads. Before they get them, they are enthusiastic. When they get them, they are indifferent. After they have had them awhile, they are bitterly hostile."

Mr. Joline wouldn't say whether the last stage of sentiment was usually permanent. He said he hoped it wasn't.

"I am of the opinion," he declared, "that the regulation of corporations

THE LAST "STORY HOUR"

The Rev. Dr. Lowe Will Tell Stories About Monkeys.

Monday morning Dr. Lowe will tell the children stories about monkeys, and he knows many funny stories about what he saw of them in India. Come at 10 o'clock Monday morning. This will be the last story hour this summer.

The appearance of the children's room has changed during the summer. New shelves have been added, the bulletin board has been recovered, a new globe is to be hung from the ceiling and new pictures from the wall.

Miss Curran is now in charge of this room and the charging and discharging of children's books will be done in this room, instead of at the loan desk as hitherto.

Ever since the library has occupied the new building there has been a rule that the children's room should not be open in the evening, and this rule will now be observed. Children are asked to come for their books before 6 o'clock in the evening. Monday being a legal holiday, the library will close at 12 o'clock.

Won the Gold Medal.

J. R. Linabary won the gold medal at the shoot of the Sedalia Gun club Friday afternoon, with a score of 24 out of a possible 25. Fred Raymond was second and J. B. Brown third.

EXCURSION RUNS AGROUND

The Steamer Chester, From Kansas City to St. Louis.

Boonville, Mo., Aug. 31.—The steamer Chester, bound for St. Louis, is aground on a sand bar twelve miles west of this city.

Members of the wharfmen's excursion, en route from Kansas City to St. Louis, who had been on the boat, arrived here at 4 o'clock Friday, and again at 5 o'clock in gasoline launches and returned home.

They were informed by the officers of the boat that it might be several days before she could be freed. The boat has been on the bar since Thursday morning.

The M. E., South, Conference. The Southwest Missouri conference of the Methodist church, South, will meet in Independence September 11.

A MISSIONARY MEETING

THE FOREIGN SOCIETY OF THE FIRST M. E. CHURCH ON SEPTEMBER 6th.

WILL MEET WITH MRS. CARPENTER

Officers Will Be Elected and Preparation Made for Great Branch Convention Here Second Week in October.

The regular monthly meeting of the Foreign Missionary society of the First M. E. church will be held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Carpenter on Friday afternoon, September 6, at 2:30 o'clock, with the following program:

Lesson, the Fijiis, Hebrides and Melanesia.

Fiji islands; their number and location; tell of the inhabitants and some of their social customs—Mrs. Blosser.

Some Fiji superstition; introduction of Christianity—Mrs. Irvin Raut. Mention the pioneer missionaries; give a review of the life and work of John Hunt while there—Mrs. E. K. Lowe.

Tell of the early missionary efforts James Calvert; what of the present condition and outlook for the Fiji islands—Mrs. S. S. Martin.

Tell of the number and location of the New Hebrides; what of the country generally—Mrs. McQuidd.

Give description of the habits and social conditions of the inhabitants—Miss Ruth Martin.

Tell of the early missionary efforts in the New Hebrides; also of the sandalwood trade—Mrs. J. Butters.

Give a sketch of the labors of Geddie; what of the work in Erromanga—Mrs. C. C. Clay.

Briefly review the life of John G. Paton—Mrs. A. C. Heaton.

Tell of the missionary efforts of Coleridge Patterson and John Englis—Mrs. G. C. McLaughlin.

Briefly outline the missionary efforts of Bishop Selwyn—Mrs. Weiler.

Present condition and outlook for Melanesia—Mrs. Mattie Zoll.

Search further questions—Do the English of French best hold to the interests of the native population?

Describe the Kanaka labor traffic. Do the Fijians or Samoans display the best promise for future development?

Which church denomination is most prominent in the following islands—the Fijiis, the New Hebrides, in Melanesia?

Directly following the program will be held the annual election of officers for the year, and the furthering of the preparations for the great branch missionary convention to be held here the second week in October.

Of Great Interest to All Parents of School Children.

In buying school books be careful that you are not overcharged. The state has set prices at which all books are to be sold. But some dealers are charged from 5c to 15c more on each book. Refuse to pay more than the contract price.

Dunlap's, 504 Ohio street, sells all books at contract price.

Merchants Enjoyed a Smoker.

The Retail Merchants' association of this city gave an enjoyable smoker at the Business Men's club rooms Friday night, under the direction of C. C. Lawson. About twenty-five people attended. During the evening W. H. Ramsey, Albert Loewer and Ormond & Kleuber were admitted to membership in the association.

A weak Stomach, causing dyspepsia, a weak heart with palpitation or intermittent pulse, always means weak Stomach nerves or weak heart nerves. Strengthen these inside or controlling nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly these ailments disappear. Dr. Shoop, of Racine, Wis., will mail samples free. Write for them. A test will tell. Your health is certainly worth this simple trial. Sold by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

Moved to New Building.

Tony Turner, an East Sedalia tinner, Saturday moved from No. 1106 East Third street to his new building at the southwest corner of Third and Summit avenue.

Gave Teacher a Present.

Mrs. Lee Licklider, who has been the teacher of a class of boys in the Baptist Sunday school in East Sedalia, was presented with a beautiful brooch Friday evening by the members of her class. She left Saturday for Denver, Colo., to reside, and the present was given in remembrance of them.

Misses Emma Baker and Gussie Kippsey, young misses of East Sedalia, served a lemonade and cake supper at the home of Will Baker, on East Fourteenth street, Friday night, and realized $2.50 from the affair.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31.—About 40 telegraphers who have been handling leased wires in the packing houses in East St. Louis returned to work yesterday, after having been out for two weeks.

It is understood the men have returned to work at the old scale, pending an adjustment of the commercial telegraphers union strike.

Notice to Coal Contractors.

Bids will be received for coal at the office of the secretary on or before the 10th day of September. Bids for hauling will be received at the same time and place. The committee reserves the right to reject any and all bids.—A. W. McKenzie, W. M. Johns, Chas. Hoffman, Committee on Supplies.

Stolen Tools Recovered.

Feliz McGaw had a saw, hoe, rake and other tools stolen from his West Sixth street home Thursday night, and recovered them at a second hand store, where they had been sold by the thief, Friday. The thief had also arranged to sell a lawn mower Saturday, but he failed to show up.

LEWIS GLASS FOUND GUILTY

Former Telephone Official Convicted of Bribing Supervisors.

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—The jury in the case of Louis Glass, formerly vice president of the Pacific Coast Telephone and Telephone company, last night returned a verdict of guilty. But one ballot was taken. The convicted official was indicted for bribing supervisors in connection with franchise matters.

The conviction of Glass was largely accomplished by the testimony of Dr. Boston, the bribe, former supervisor and acting mayor, who created a sensation by accusing W. J. Burnes, detective, of bribery prosecution, of subordination of perjury.

Louis Glass was indicted eleven times on a charge of bribing ten supervisors for $5,000 each to kill a franchise asked by a rival telephone company, and twice for alleged bribing to secure a franchise for his own company.

A Prearranged Match

By Genevieve Hays

(Copyright, by Joseph D. Bowles.)

Miss Murray paused, brush in hand, as an ominous sound reached her ears from an adjoining room—a sound that had grown distressingly familiar since her arrival at the Courtlands' and which always betokened a disturbance in the domestic atmosphere of that place.

"They're at it again," she commented, carelessly, nodding to the bright, insouciant face in the glass and bringing the brush down vigorously upon the wealth of hair falling about her like a silken shroud. "They quarrel incessantly, day and night, and keep one in a delightful state of uncertainty as to which it will be—a skirmish or a battle royal. And, considering this little peculiarity, it seems that I was not given a room further removed from theirs. Fortunately, life at Brother John's has accustomed me to such a state of affairs—but poor Dennis!"

Genise Murray was an orphan. The greater part of her life had been spent at boarding school. At 18 she returned home to find that her brother—to whose care had been entrusted her share of her father's estate—had lost all her money in an unlucky speculation. She was penniless.

John Murray briefly stated this fact to his sister and suggested but one alternative—to marry rich.

"As yet no one knows of this unfortunate loss. You are still considered an heiress, and are handsome enough to marry where you choose. I have here an invitation from the Courtlands for you to spend a month or so with them. They are wealthy and have but one child—an unmarried son.

had nearly kicked over. "She wonders if you're a-avin' to borrow money."

"No, father, I've borrowed no money, for, to tell the truth, I've not paid for what I've got," answered John, while he looked away to hide the merriment that danced in his eyes.

"I wouldn't a'believed it!" cried the old man again. "I believe in charity, but charity begins at home," as the saying is, and if you ain't a-payin' fer 'em, John, why, somebody has got to lose 'em."

"No, nobody shall lose. Claribel pays for them herself. Don't worry, father, it's all right," and the young man's honest blue eyes smiled down into the old man's dim ones in such a straightforward way, that his heart was set at rest.

"I told mother I was sure it was. But—well—some of the rest had got her skinned, and she was bound to know."

"Yes, Jerusha goes about agitating the matter more than anyone else. She don't want to do Claribel any injury, but she can't keep her tongue still. She'd be a pretty good woman if she didn't talk so much, and do so much looking after other people's affairs."

"Claribel pays for 'em!" exclaimed Jerusha, "jest a poor minister's daughter; she hadn't no money of her own. How does she make it? Hira! her work done?" with a scornful laugh.

"It's like I've heard of folks a-livin' off the interest of their debts."

"During the next six weeks Jerusha 'found out' and reported to the rest of the 'family' how Claribel had declared that something must be done to bring in the many children of the village, who claimed Sunday as a legal holiday, and never dreamed of entering the dull Sunday school that the one little church in the village afforded."

Acting on this, she had purchased a juvenile library of 50 books, furnished Scripture text cards and papers, besides, on several occasions, meeting the excuses of some of the most unwelcome ones by furnishing hats, shoes or mittens (as the case might require), amongst those she found in her searches amongst the "highways and hedges. John had kept his own counsel, but a sharp lookout since his conversation with his father.

Until the last Sunday, Claribel, absorbed in her work, had not marked the averted looks and ominous glances in her direction, although they had been apparent to her husband.

But on that day, the little woman went home filled with dismay and sorely wounded in heart.

At church Sophia and Melindy had passed her by with a cool nod. Jerusha had been so to speak, since Play your cards well and win him. It is the only chance I can give you."

And Genise Murray accepted the invitation as she did the advice, without comment. Three weeks' endurance with her sister-in-law's uncertain temper and her brother's morose silence advised the wisdom of obtaining a temporary release from both, even if such were to be accomplished only by a visit to a certain not-to-be-mentioned tropical locality.

"But if John thinks I am willing to take my chances in the matrimonial market after the insight he and Rosamond have given me into wedded bliss, he is mistaken," soliloquized Miss Murray, as she paused in her trunk packing to mend a pair of torn gloves, "and so I shall tell this unfortunate young gentleman who is offered me—without his knowledge—in lieu of my lost fortune."

So when Dennis Courtland in obedience to parental commands drove to the station to meet the girl who might prove a desirable consort.

"In the role of sweet simplicity," he commented, grimly, noting her dainty costume of non-like gray. "If women only wouldn't make their wiles so apparent—"

Then he broke off in amazement at what she was saying:

"Please drive slow, Mr. Courtland; I wish to talk to you."

"Evidently doesn't intend to lose any time," thought Dennis, cynically, as he acquiesced stiffly with her request.

Flashing an inquisitive glance into that haughty, defiant face, Genise Murray concluded that the woman who embarked in a matrimonial venture with this young man would have anything but a smooth sail through life; though aloud she only said:

"We are strangers, and to some extent will be expected to entertain each other in the coming weeks, so it is best that we should have an understanding in the beginning. You may not know it—but my brother sent me down here to marry you."

No other woman could say things in Miss Murray's inimitable manner. "Your brother's wishes coincide with my parents'; they are anxious for me to marry you."

"And of course you made up your mind to hate me at once."

Dennis winced and stammered. "Don't trouble yourself to deny the charge," laughed his companion, vivaciously. "It would not be true to nature were it otherwise! But your parents did not know that I am utter

MALARIA A SYSTEMIC BLOOD POISON

UNDERMINES THE HEALTH- LAYS THE FOUNDATION FOR DISEASE

Malaria comes from the absorption into the blood of germs and microbes which destroy the rich, nutritive qualities of the circulation and reduce it to a weak, watery, disease-spreading stream. The healthy color of the skin is given to it by the millions of little red corpuscles which are in the blood. These are the carriers of nourishment and health to all parts of the body; in other words the very life and vitalizing essence of the circulation. The destruction of these corpuscles by the malarial poison takes the color from the cheek, and in the first stages of Malaria we have pale, sallow faces, poor appetite, a bilious condition is set up, and we feel "out of sorts" generally. But Malaria means more than this; it is a systemic blood poison, which undermines the health and gives rise to innumerable and sometimes serious disorders and diseases if the poison is allowed to remain in the blood. As the blood becomes more and more polluted with the malarial poison, the digestion becomes deranged, chills and fever are frequent, skin diseases, boils and carbuncles, and sores and ulcers break out on the flesh, and after awhile the foundation is laid for other diseases which either prove fatal or permanently undermine and wreck the health. Malaria can only be worked out of the system through the blood. Purging the liver and bowels with strong, nauseating cathartics can never remove the trouble because they do not reach the blood where the germs are constantly multiplying. The only hope for a cure is a remedy that can destroy the germs and microbes, and neutralize the bad effects of the poison, and S. S. S. is the medicine to accomplish this, because it is a perfect blood purifier and a general systemic remedy of unequalled value. S. S. S. searches out and removes every trace of the malarial poison and puts the blood in such rich, healthy condition that sallow, anaemic complexions take on the ruddy glow of health, the liver and digestion are righted, the appetite improved, the system vitalized and strengthened, and every symptom of Malaria passes away. Malarial persons will find S. S. S. not only a prompt remedy but a gentle, pleasant acting one, as well as a certain cure for this disease. Besides removing the cause of Malaria S. S. S. builds up every part of the system by its fine tonic effects. Persons living in a malarial section should, at this season, fortify their systems against this insidious disease by purifying their blood with a course of S. S. S. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free of charge.

New York Fashion Letter

BY CATHERINE MANN-PAYZANT

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, Aug. 29.—School days are rapidly approaching, and mothers of girls of school age must soon begin planning the wardrobes of their young hopefuls. Clothes are as interesting to the small woman of tender years as to her mother, and she shows her feminine qualities when she demands pretty frocks for school as well as for dress occasions. It is well to so train her that the work dress is of prime importance for her own appearance and for its effect upon those with whom she comes in contact. Certain principles should be instilled into her young mind by the unconscious method of the school dress—serviceability, neatness to a fault, unassuming quietness of color and material and appropriateness to the occasion. Such lessons, once learned, will be lasting. The neatly dressed little girl of today will be the neatly dressed woman of tomorrow.

The constant demand for new garments for the children, occasioned by the different seasons, their rapid growth and the hard service their clothing receives, make designs for them welcome at any time of the year, but especially so at this time. The best styles are simple, but there is no limit to the fineness of the work, materials or trimmings. Fashions for little girls do not change very much from year to year. For older girls, of course, there are many modified forms and late creations, but the same general styles with little individual touches of originality are still clung to by sensible mothers.

Dresses made of ginghams and chambrays both look well and wear well and are very popular for school wear. The plaid ginghams are especially smart just now and are usually trimmed with a plain color or white. The chambrays, too, are usually relieved with a little white in the neck band and sleeves. Pique is as fashionable as ever for little girls, but on account of its coarseness it requires very simple handling or it becomes clumsy. Box pleats are the best means of securing fullness.

For dresses for certain occasions the new silks are suited for children, while for the very cool weather the serges and lightweight woollens are very satisfactory.

A little dress that will be satisfactory for school wear was made of fine mull chambray and Irish or Cluny lace insertion. It is in two parts. The under part is straight and box-pleated from the low, square neck. The only trimming is the insertion around the edges of the bell-shaped sleeves. Over this is slipped the upper portion of the dress, which consists of two panels gradually widening toward the bottom, one in the front and one in the back. These panels are outlined by insertions which connect them over the shoulders. At about the height of the hips are straps of the insertion catching the front and back panels together. This little frock could be made up in novelty goods with braid or galloon trimmings, instead of the insertion. It is a mode that is particularly fitted for a school dress. The edges of the panels, the straps and the sleeves could then be finished with button hole scallops instead of the lace.

Another plain and serviceable little frock, suited to school wear, is of plaid gingham, laid in box-pleats. The neck, cut in a curved V shape, is bordered with a band of the plain material, or may be colored or white, according to the choice. One side overlaps the other at the point in front where it is fastened with a pearl button. From this a band extends straight down the front to the belt, which fastens a little to one side with a button. The short, puffed sleeves are gathered into a lapped and buttoned cuff of the plain material. A dark blue or gray or tan would be suitable colors for the plaid when it is to see service in the school room and on the play ground, and the trimmings could be of the same contrasting color, or, if desired, of white.

A third little dress allows of great choice of materials, and is suitable for church or afternoon wear, as well as for the school room. Biege tussor was chosen and this forms the short pleated skirt and belt. The broad yoke collar was made of insertions of Cluny lace, alternating with finely tucked bands of tussor silk. Two pieces of insertion, which form the sides of the square yoke, extend down to the belt in front. The broad yoke collar is finished with a ruffe of lace. The under blouse, of soft white mull, has cuffs of silk and lace. Another good combination for this model would be China silk or mousseline and lace, the skirt being trimmed to match the collar. Then, again, with some materials, the collar and skirt could be of linen, the collar and straps being untrimmed, save for stitching. It would look well also in pique, the collar and strap being all in one piece and simply edged with buttonhole scallops.

Trimmings used for children's dresses include Valenciennes lace, insertion or edging, lace or embroidered beading, embroidered edging and insertion, lavable ribbon, washable braid, Persian band embroidery, in washable colors, and hand embroidery in plain white linen floss. When a dainty touch to belt or shoulder straps is desired, the small rosettes, made of baby ribbon, are attractive, aiding greatly in enhancing the general effectiveness of the garment. Care must be exercised in the choosing of a color that will harmonize with the whole costume.

Many mothers still cling to the wash goods for all winter, and when it is remembered that one can always thus make such a fresh appearance, and that hot water and soap are death to germs likely to be found in school rooms, such goods would appear to be much better than woollens that absorb the deadly microbes of disease. White goods were never displayed to better advantage, the list including India linen, Persian lawn, French lawn, Florentine batiste, dotted Swisses, jacquard novelties, figured muslins, embroidered muslins, printed poplins, mercerized figured tissues, Irish linen and handkerchief linen. All the materials mentioned are suitable for afternoon wear, and where it is the desire of the mother to keep her little daughter or son in white, the Irish and butcher's linens are excellent materials for morning wear.

The colored materials are mercerized Madras, silk finished ginghams, flens and silk pongees, dimities, figured percales and self-colored linens. These goods certainly sound frigid for the cold weather that is coming, but many use them, depending on the underclothing for warmth and the outer garments for out door wear. Warm underclothing is a better protection for school children than the dress, where the drafts and heating are uncertain quantities in these large school rooms.

Very delicate shades as well as white are used for little children's coats, and zenana, Bedford cord, Egyptian broadcloth, cashmere and ottoman and faille silk are suggested. A delicate tracery of hand embroidery could be used on the cloth or silk or smooth surface, while the fancy braids and lace are always suitable for trimming coats of all sorts.

Of the many styles shown, the box shaping is one of the best for a girl's coat. It can be made with both front and back hanging free from the shoulders, and the latter with a center seam, or not, as preferred. The fronts lap in double-breasted fashion, closing with decorative metal or pearl buttons and button holes. A wide sailor collar completes the neck, which is slightly open, and the coat may be trimmed with embroidered emblems or with silk braid, both being favored for coats of this kind. The sleeves are of Bishop shaping, being gathered into reversed cuffs, with a finish of stitching and braid.

One of the most popular styles of coat for children is the Russian coat, which is very serviceable. It can hang perfectly plain in the back or front or be gathered in slightly with a belt which passes through straps at the under arm seams. The sleeves are gathered into the armholes, and at the wrist are finished with a cuff or simply stitched. A

DAUGHTER OF BARON ELOPES

Alma Von Hedemann, Instead of Going to Picnic, Marries Boy.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 31.—Alma Von Hedemann, 15 years old, daughter of the late Baron Fritz Von Hedemann, eloped Friday to Youngstown, O., with Frank Haines, aged 21, who is employed in one of the South Side mills. Baron Von Hedemann came here from Germany with his wife in 1873, after having had some trouble with his family.

When Haines began paying attention to the beautiful Miss Von Hedemann her mother objected, not only on account of the age of her daughter, but because she expected to take her abroad to make a match for her with some titled foreigner.

Friday morning Alma was given permission to attend a Sunday school picnic at Rock Point. She sent a telegram later from Youngstown saying she and Haines had been married.

CHECK WAS WORTHLESS

A Kansas City Man Was Arrested in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 31.—Frank Miner, aged 22, of Kansas City, was arrested here yesterday and is held pending application of an information charging him with forgery for the alleged passing of a check for $100 on G. Martin, a broker, 521 Merchants' Exchange building.

The check was drawn on the National Bank of the Republic, Kansas City, and is signed with the name of the Logan Grain and Commission company.

Martin alleged Miner presented letters of introduction purporting to be from the Logan company and asked him to cash a draft, which he says he did. Martin says the Kansas City firm informed him by telegraph that the check was a forgery.

Miner was arrested when he came to collect his winnings on margins which he had telephoned Martin to buy for him. He refused to make a statement.

Sunday Schools' Work

DR. G. L. SHEPARD, CO. SUPT.—NO. 27.

We wonder how many of our Sunday school workers realize that there is a great forward movement now in progress in the Sunday school work. Such is the fact, and now is the time for us of Sedalia, of Pettis county, of Missouri, to put forth our very best efforts.

Much has been accomplished in the past. There is very much more to be done in the future. Let us all, every pastor, every superintendent and officer, every teacher, try and realize this to the fullest extent. See Heb. 10:24-25.

And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works, not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more as ye see the day approaching. There should be a general and united effort all along the line in every Sunday school in the country.

The forty-second annual state Sunday school convention will be held at Springfield, Mo., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 19, 20 and 21, 1907. There is much for us to do before that time, in order to get a share of the good things sure to be offered at that meeting.

Township and county conventions should be held and sufficient interest developed that each township be represented at our state meeting. The great development of the Sunday school has been brought about very largely by convention work. This work is growing in importance and effectiveness every year. Let us fall into line and keep step to the music, each one striving to be in the front rank.

We are preparing a program for the September meeting of the Sedalia Sunday school union. This will consist of a consideration of some of the very important "points" brought out in our recent correspondence with Sedalia Sunday school workers, and should prove an exceedingly interesting and instructive meeting. We hope a large proportion of our more than three hundred officers and teachers will arrange to be present.

Quite a number of our Sunday schools have not yet responded to the call made some months ago for an annual contribution to our state work. Pettis county was pledged for one hundred dollars—fifty dollars for 1906 and fifty dollars for 1907. Less than one-third of this has been paid. Five cents from each member of the Sunday school, once a year, would seem to be a very small contribution to so great and important a cause, and yet it would enable this work to move forward in a much more effective manner than it is at present able to do. Let us each do our part.

The Missouri Sunday School News, a monthly published in St. Louis, is the official organ of our Missouri Sunday School association. The subscription price is only 10 cents, in clubs of five or more to one address. It should be in the hands of every officer and teacher. The convention number alone is worth more than the price of subscription. Get up a club in your school.

We enjoyed a brief conversation the past week with a bright young Sunday school scholar who asked several intelligent and pertinent questions regarding the Sedalia Sunday schools, and spoke in highest terms of his school and teacher. We enjoy such conversations.

Please send in items of interest from every school in the county.

We want a grand county convention about the last of October or first of November. Shall we have it?

MAN MADE 80 OUT OF 50

REFERENCE HAD TO GALLONS OF MILK IN A KANSAS CITY DAIRY.

REGULAR WORK OF AN EMPLOYEE

Recent Prosecutions Have Greatly Improved Conditions—Missouri University Professor Tells of Conditions in State.

"One of the students at the university formerly worked in a dairy in Kansas City. He tells us that one of his regular duties every morning was to make eighty gallons out of fifty gallons of milk."

This statement was made this morning by Prof. C. H. Eckles, of the Missouri State university, in answer to a question about milk sold in the cities, says the Kansas City Star. Prof. Eckles is at the head of the department of dairy husbandry in the Agricultural college, which is a part of the state university. He is here today with George B. Ellis, secretary of the Missouri state board of agriculture, to select a place for a dairy exhibit at the Interstate fair to be held at Elm Ridge.

"I had thought," Prof. Eckles said, "that St. Louis had as poor milk as any American city, but the city is making some improvements in dairy conditions now. We tested, some cream bought in Jefferson City at 80 cents a gallon. It showed 7 per cent butter fat. The milk from our Jersey cows at the university tests 6.8 per cent, barely less than Jefferson City cream. Some Jersey cows will give milk with more butter fat than there is in the cream sold in Jefferson City."

"Have you any remedy for these conditions?"

"Our department has none. The dairy commissioner is supposed to look after conditions under which milk is sold, but the standard for milk is too low. Good milk might stand an addition of three gallons of water to every five of milk and still measure up to the low standard sometimes provided. We can't tell by analyzing just how much water has been poured into a can of milk, but of course, if the mixture is fifty gallons of milk and thirty gallons of water we would know that the dairyman had patronized the hydrant. To know how much water was added we must know what kind of milk it was before the adding process was begun. Different dairies would have a different percentage of butter fat."

Discussing another phase of the milk question, Prof. Eckles said the western states do not pay enough attention to tuberculosis.

"A few years ago," he said, "I did not think tuberculosis in dairy cows was specially dangerous to people. Recent experiments have shown that hogs will take tuberculosis from milk that comes from cows affected by the disease. There is also much evidence of a similar effect on the human system. At the university we test for tuberculosis every cow we buy."

"Twice we have found cows infected and promptly disposed of them. If we would keep an infected cow with the herd she could give the disease to the whole herd in a short time. Minneapolis and some other cities do not allow milk to be sold except by dairymen who have their cows tested for tuberculosis occasionally and can present certificates that they are healthful. New York and Boston have a high standard for their milk and strict regulations to keep out milk that may carry tuberculosis. Our western cities will come to that in time, but they are slow realizing its importance."

The Kansas City inspectors take an average of twenty samples a day from dairymen. These are tested for dilution as well as for preservatives or any impurities. Recent prosecutions have caused the dairymen to become wary and the tests lately have shown a decided improvement in the quality of the milk.

Kansas City has a veterinary surgeon in the food inspection department. With the milk inspector he makes periodical examinations of cows at the dairies for tuberculosis. Infected cows are ordered out of the herds by threatening the dairymen to bar the sale of milk in the city limits.

DEATH OF ARCHBISHOP

Was Dean of Hierarchy of Catholic Church in America.

Boston, Aug. 31.—Death came shortly before 9 o'clock last night to the Most Rev. John J. Williams, archbishop of the Boston diocese, dean of the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church in America and for a generation or more the spiritual head of that faith in New England.

Archbishop Williams was born 85 years ago in Boston. His parents were Irish immigrants in humble circumstances. Sixty-five years of his life was spent in the priesthood, during twenty-seven of which he had been archbishop, and all of the time in the diocese of Boston.

At the age of 11 he was sent to Montreal, to the seminary of St. Eugene, from where he graduated in 1841. He completed his theological course at the Grand seminary in Paris. He was ordained in 1845 and at once returned to Boston. In 1875 he was elevated to archbishop. The title to $10,000 worth of church property stood in his name.

MRS. WARNER WINS CASE

DE WITT COUNTY, ILL., JUDGE HOLDS SHE IS NOT OF NEGRO BLOOD.

THE STEPSON WILL APPEAL CASE

United States Commissioner of Pensions Is Not Satisfied With the Decision—The Case Was Truly Sensational.

Clinton, Ill., Aug. 31.—Judge W. G. Cochran, of the circuit court of De Witt county, last night announced his decision in the case in which United States Commissioner of Pensions Vespasian Warner sought to prevent his stepmother, the widow of Dr. John Warner, from sharing in the estate left by his father.

The judge held that Mrs. Warner was not of negro parentage and was entitled to a full widow's dowry and the homestead, the value of both being more than $300,000.

Commissioner Warner several weeks ago instituted proceedings in court to prevent his stepmother from sharing in the estate, on the ground that she was of negro blood.

The case was bitterly fought, many witnesses seeking to prove and disprove the charge, being summoned from Illinois, Ohio and other states.

The judge stated in announcing his opinion that he had carefully reviewed the evidence, and could find no basis for the charge.

Vespasian Warner's attorneys said that they would appeal the case to the appellate court.

An Educational Festival.

And one that is patronized and endorsed by the elite of the land, the famous Gentry shows, founded seven years ago by the Gentry Bros. and conducted since that time successfully by them, enjoys the distinction of being the only moral exhibition that tours under canvas. The highly interesting and instructive performances given by this firm has been claimed as an educational festival as well as a most comprehensive exhibition of animal intelligence. This year finds the shows enlarged and improved in every department by the addition of many new performances and animals in addition to the trained animal features; many high grade circus acts have been engaged for this season. The menagerie has also been augmented by a new herd of performing baby elephants and a drove of educated camels, which will be seen for the first time when the show exhibits in this city. The Gentry show has enjoyed the patronage of the best people wherever it exhibits and in consideration of that fact, the management has always made a special effort to merit the attention of the elite. The show will exhibit here Thursday, September 5, at Liberty park.

"Billy" Williams is Certain to "Bob Up" in Due Time.

"Billy" Williams, who was in Sedalia a few months ago and desired to get up a minstrel entertainment for the benefit of one of the churches here, was written of as follows in Friday's Kansas City Journal:

"Billy Williams, the old-time minstrel, is wandering lost somewhere in Kansas City, according to his wife, with the youngest of their seven children. She came in from Iola, Kas., last night, where until Wednesday Williams was assisting organizing an amateur show, looking for him. She called at No. 4 police station, and asked for assistance to locate the husband."

"Williams had slept at 215 West Sixteenth street with Gus Manning Thursday night, but had become separated from Manning yesterday forenoon after going down town. At midnight Williams had not been found."

The Journal need not worry. "Billy" will materialize all right in due time.

tomer buying a piano is that he show as good horse sense as when buying a hog or a critter for his herd; then pedigree counts, blood tells, and the registry talks. Sharp's pianos have reputation. The World's Exposition Records at Paris, 1900, and St. Louis, 1904, has his pianos on their register, way up with the best premiums and highest honors ever given to a musical instrument.

Isn't that worth as much to a piano as a pedigree is to a hog?

Case of Smallpox at Smithton.

The family of John L. Jones was quarantined Saturday evening, owing to one of the members being broken out with smallpox, says the Smithton Sunbeam. The disease is in very mild form, not causing the patient to keep in bed. Dr. Albers, who has the case in charge, informed us that the quarantine will be kept on for about fourteen days longer, and if no new cases appear it will then be lifted.

A BOOZE FUNERAL PYRE

$2,500 WORTH OF SALOON FIX-TURES DESTROYED AT FORT SCOTT, KAS.

VERY LARGE CROWD WAS PRESENT

Bar Was Rigged Up and a Photograph Taken of the Pile-Up Just Before Match Was Touched Off and Stuff Burned.

For the first time in Fort Scott's history, saloon and bar fixtures have been publicly burned, says Friday's Fort Scott Tribune. This forenoon
Sheriff Hesser and Under Sheriff Cowan, several teamsters and not a few temperance folk burned down on First street, near Buck Run, the goods seized from Frank Vaughan and the Jenkins-Noonan saloons. A large crowd was present. It seemed a gala day for the temperance people.
Before the match was touched off a temporary bar was fixed up in front of the big heap and a photograph was taken. In the picture appeared the officers, Rev. Primrose and a Tribune man.

The picture was suggested as a matter of jest and it certainly was cleverly carried out. A mahogany bar was placed in position and a foot rest was dragged from the debris and positioned in the usual place.

The omnipresent cuspidor was to be seen in front of the bar, and across the top were placed jugs and kegs.
On the jug appeared these words:
"Witch hazel, nit," the words written by White Mule Hankins, who hasn't rolled off the water wagon since the lid went down with a thundering crash.

Behind the bar stood two officers and a newspaper man, as if barkeeps.
Arch Davenport was at one side singing an original song, and Primrose was in the attitude of Thorar, the giant killer, equipped with a big sledge which was aimed at a jug.
This picture will be sent to temperance papers all over the country for publication.

Of the large crowd that visited the grounds many took away souvenirs.
Large and costly mirrors, after being broken with hammers, were carried away by relic hunters. The mahogany bars, as well as ice chests, numerous kegs and beer cases made a big fire and attracted many visitors.
The value of the stuff destroyed is estimated to have been about $3,500.
There wasn't a saloon man at the funeral.

A New Tailoring Establishment.

The Model Tailoring Co., H. F.
Brown, manager, recently opened for business at 611 South Ohio street, in one of the new rooms in the Sinnett block. The enterprise will do a general tailoring business. A fine line of woolsens are in stock from which suits will be made to your order at moderate prices. There is also a cleaning and pressing department.
Manager Brown is very much impressed with Sedalia and the hospitality of her people, and says he is glad he selected Sedalia to locate in, which was one of many places considered. His establishment is neatly arranged, fresh in appearance and clean. Mr. Brown has had many words of encouragement and congratulations from business men, which, with the courtesies extended him, all go to make him feel "at home" in Sedalia.

Advice to the Discontented.

Whenever you are tempted to growl against fate or complain of your lot just look around and find out what others are bearing. You will find many men with more brains and better education worse off than you are. Then compare your lot with that of such men and if you don't quit complaining and go in for rejoicing there's something radically wrong with your mental balance. When an obstacle gets in your way don't waste time and energy in complaining about it. If you can't push it out of your path get over it, under it or around it any way you can —and leave the obstacle behind you.
The second obstacle will not appear half as big if you get past the first—Spare Moments.

Object Was Not Purchase.

Managers and clerks in large department stores of necessity have to deal with all classes of people, and they often have most amusing experiences, owing to the peculiarities of their customers, says the Philadelphia Record. While waiting for an exchange at the silk counter in a Market street establishment a clerk told a West Philadelphia shopper a story which she has since been circulating among her circle of friends. "An uptown customer," the clerk said, "last week had six yards of a most expensive silk sent C. O. D. The next day the package was returned to us and upon it was written: 'Returned. I was only teaching my daughter how to shop.'"

HAVE TO HAVE MERCURY.

In Guatemala Natives Steal It from Thermometers.

The thermometer registered 97, and looking at it, the two men wiped their red, wet brows.

"Phew, it's hot," said the visitor.
"But why have you got your thermometer all incased in heavy iron wire?"

"Because," replied the host, "it is a Guatemalan thermometer. In Guatemala they are all incased in wire like that."

"But why?"

"To prevent the natives from eating the mercury."

"Go on!"

"It is a fact. In Guatemala the intense heat causes the natives to suffer dreadfully from torpid liver. They know that mercury is a liver specific, but they have no money to buy it, so they steal it. For their health's sake they steal it, poor sick creatures, out of thermometers. On any dark, hot night, if you hide near an unprotected thermometer, you will see a native, weak and thin, steal up to the instrument. He groans and presses his hand to his aching liver; then, with a quick look round, he breaks the glass and swallows the ball of mercury in one mouthful."

"The listener smiled."

"I suppose that Guatemala," he said, "is the only place in the world where thermometers are looked on as an article of food."

TWO VERY TALL STORIES.

Brought Into Light of Day by Contest Between Wits.

A couple of witty fellows were conversing together recently, and their arguments finally occasioned a bet between them. Each agreed to tell a peculiar incident, and the reciter of the stranger episode was to receive the stakes. No. 1 began and said he knew a woman who was "turned into wood."

"Impossible!" said No. 2; "explain yourself."

"You see," was the reply, "the woman was placed on a vessel, and then she was a-board."

"Very good," said No. 2; "but listen to this. I once knew a man who had been deaf and dumb for 20 years, but last week he regained speech in one minute."

"Nonsense!" rejoined No. 1; "but proceed."

"Well," replied No. 2, "the man I mean went into a bicycle shop with a friend, and, stooping down, he picked up a wheel and spoke."

Bull Goes Hunting.

A full-grown black bull, says a Madrid correspondent, rushed towards a mill on the estate of Marquis Sastel-lones. The animal set off in pursuit of the marquis, who had started for his mansion to warn his family. He found the marchioness and his two daughters sitting in the open near the door. The bull was close behind him, and the marquis seized his wife and children and literally flung them through the door, which he slammed behind him. An instant later the bull's horns pierced a panel of the door, which held firm. The marquis seized a rifle and shot the bull from a window. Five bullets were needed to kill the infuriated animal.

Odd Reason for Bankruptcy.

One of the oddest reasons ever given for bankruptcy was that heard about a year ago in a Malta court. A Maltese tradesman whose affairs were in hopeless disorder put it all down to the fact that he followed a creditor on board ship, and found himself an unwilling passenger to England, the ship having started while he was below. During his enforced absence his foreman collected all the available cash and decamped, leaving the shop to look after itself. When the owner got home he found himself a ruined man.

Scrap Book for Invalids.

Save all the witty clippings and paste in a small scrapbook. Often when one is not able to read lengthy articles something bright and witty will help brighten the day. It should be loaned and passed along only where it would be appreciated the most. Little pieces can be pasted on cards, and are held much more easily by persons lying in bed. Gay pictures, comic and otherwise, are nice for children, and afford amusement to the impatient little sufferers who must remain in bed.

Not Proud, But Strange.

They all wondered at the big sociable table in the little cafe why it was he seemed so haughty. Some thought it was because he was so clean. Another because his nails had so evidently been through the hands of a manicurist. Another because his suit of clothes was so slick and span and new. At last one spoke as she passed the salt. The newcomer bowed and smiled at her.

"I cannot you answer," he said. "I have just arriv' only. I no spick Anglais."

Provident.

A man on a Chestnut street car, searching his pocket for a ticket, found he had only one, and handed the conductor a nickel instead.

"I wouldn't think of giving up my last ticket," he explained to a friend,
"for I'm liable to blow in all my cash and want to be sure of getting home.
I always keep one ticket on hand for cases of emergency."—Philadelphia Ledger.

ADOPTS NINE WAIFS

Farmer Has Received Eight From Children's Home.

Ravenwood, Mo., Aug. 31.—The Missouri record for adoptions of homeless children is claimed by O. P. Russ, a farmer of Ravenwood, who, since January 1, 1906, has taken into his household eight waifs from the St. Louis receiving station of the Children's Home Society of Missouri. Russ made arrangements last week to take three little ones to his home. During 1906 he adopted five, and as he had one adopted child prior to that time, his family now consists of nine wards.

Mr. Russ's theory is that since he has no children of his own, it is his duty to care for those of others who are not so able and to afford them the benefit of his means. Near Ravenwood he owns a fine farm of 400 acres, and, in addition to raising grain, he is extensively interested in fine cattle. He is about 50 years old and represented Nodaway county, in which he lives, one term in the legislature.

During the season Russ delivers Chautauqua addresses and generally speaks on the subject of "Child Saving."

KILLS WIFE WITH HIS FIST

Carmi Man Says He Intended Only to Show Woman.

Carmi, Ill., Aug. 31.—Dock Vaughan, of East Carmi, was yesterday held by a coroner's jury to await the action of the grand jury for killing his wife, Christiana Vaughan.

During a quarrel early Friday the man struck the woman across the neck and shoulders. She fell through a door to the ground outside. She regained her feet, but sank in the doorway and died.

Vaughan was immediately arrested. He said his wife came here in February from Thebes with their six children.

Each accused the other of infidelity. Vaughan says he only shoved the woman and did not intend to harm her.

LID IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

PROSECUTOR AND DETECTIVE
ALMOST COME TO BLOWS ON FRIDAY.

THE LATTER DEFENDS HIS RECORD

He Declares His Former Arrest Was the Result of a Boyish Prank—Governor Folk Summoned in the Case.

St. Louis, Mo., August 31.—"Be this man a devil or what he may, he is entitled to protection and respect, and I demand it," shouted a member of the St. Louis county grand jury at Clayton yesterday afternoon, when W. H. Pellom was called to the witness chair in the secret chamber. Pellom is the detective who made affidavits against Prosecuting Attorney Rowland L. Johnston and Sheriff George Herpel on August 20, charging these county officials with dereliction of duty.

Pellom, who appeared in Clayton yesterday shortly after noon, and was called before the grand jury to disclose his knowledge of alleged lawless conditions in the vicinity of the old Delmar race track, stated that he had been employed by the authorities of University City since September of last year to do special detective work, and that he was familiar with every house where the law was violated in the infested district.

There has been absolute secrecy in the movements of Pellom since he made affidavits against Johnston and Herpel, as far as the county authorities are concerned, for a subpoena which had been issued for the detective had not been served up to the time he voluntarily appeared. A man who is a stranger in Clayton approached Judge Ryors in the law library and asked him if he desired to have Pellom appear in court. Upon being informed that Pellom was not wanted in the circuit court, the detective was directed to the grand jury room. The declaration that Pellom should be afforded "protection" was then overheard, and the inquisitorial body settled down to a rigid questioning of the witness.

Loud Talk in Jury Room.
Loud talk was frequently heard in the grand jury room, and at one time Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Edwin Mills emerged from the star chamber and said in an impassioned voice, as he slammed the door, "Stay there, then." Mills hurried into the library, and there said to his superior: "The ——— won't answer questions."

The prosecuting attorney entered the grand jury room, and when the door was opened to admit a member of the body who had been excused for a minute, Johnston and Pellom were seen facing each other in an almost threatening manner. Pellom was occupying the witness chair, surrounded by members of the grand jury, and Johnston was close in front of him, with index finger pointing directly in the face of the witness. Pellom seemed equally persistent, and it looked like an encounter might ensue if one or the other did not relax his position. Pellom remained in the grand jury room for more than an hour.

Assistant Attorney General Kenneth and Special Prosecutor Wolf were in the grand jury room and took an active part in handling the witness. It was evident from the vigorous questioning that an effort was being made to either discredit his testimony or obtain from him a complete statement of what he knew concerning alleged lawless conditions in the county.

Johnston and Pellom Talk.

Pellom came through the double doors with a rush when dismissed, and walked straight to where Prosecuting Attorney was standing, and engaged in earnest conversation. Johnston stated later that they were discussing the petition filed by Pellom against Herpel, and which is in the hands of the prosecuting attorney for action. Johnston also reminded his hearers that he had asked Gov. Folk for assistance in the matter, requesting that the list of witnesses furnished by Pellom be forwarded for use in the case.

Pellom admitted to a newspaper man that he was the individual who had been arrested in St. Louis on a serious charge, but stated that he was only 16 years old at the time, and referred to the incident as a "boyish prank." Pellom said: "Of course, I expected to have all this record come out when I started the investigation. I hope you will give me credit for that much common sense; but I did not expect to see a boyhood prank magnified until it made me look like a hardened criminal. Let me tell you, the way they have gone are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol For Dyspepsia

digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. For Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

MRS. LORING NICHOLS, Penn Yan, N. Y.
I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

into this matter and magnified my troubles only makes me all the more determined to see it through. Friends have come to me and urged me to lay bare my life and show the world that I am honest and square. I have been thankful for their encouragement, but I did not wish to be placed in the attitude of weighing my character against that of my accusers.

"I have been acting for the good of the community and the public in general in this matter, and not for the money there is in it, for any one who knows me will tell you that I could be making more money elsewhere. The work had to be done. I looked upon it as a public duty, and so would any man who had witnessed the disgraceful scenes which have come under my notice during the past few months.

Blind Could Find Gambling.

"Gambling? Even if a man had no eyes he could locate the game by keeping his ears open. I can not tell you about the things which came up before the grand jury. I have not played my hand, but am going to wait my turn, and then sweep the board. I do not wish to commit myself on the extent of my knowledge of the lawlessness in University City. Why should I? I am going to talk at the proper time.

"Where have I been? Why, right here in St. Louis and in University City and Clayton. I have no reason to keep in hiding, and it is ridiculous to think that I should hide. All this talk about the Louisiana club people knowing me when I was there is bosh. I went all through the place as a stranger to those in charge, and I prefer to remain silent at this time as to what I observed. Say this for me, however, and I shall have no trouble to prove the assertion by a dozen or more reputable firms I have worked for, that when I am employed I am true to the people I represent.

"I live in St. Louis with my mother most of the time. She is at present out of the city, however, and I have been stopping at a hotel. I have also visited Faust's, McTague's and other prominent places, which would show that I have not been trying to conceal my identity. I do not know whether I shall be called before the grand jury again or not. They know where to locate me, and if I am needed I shall only be too glad to render the grand jury every possible service."

Pellom talks with a convincing air. He measures his words and is deliberate. The detective stated that he is 26 years old.

Gumberts Case Goes Over.

Mark Gumberts and his attorney, Tom Rowe, were in Clayton yesterday morning to fight the injunction granted by Judge Robert S. Ryors against the Louisiana club. The temporary restraining order was granted Tuesday last, when Assistant Attorney General Kennish filed a petition charging violations of its charter. The case was to be argued yesterday. A demurrer was filed, but after arguments, the court overruled the demurrer, and the case will be tried on the facts at the next term of court.

"The Louisiana club is the worst bell hole in the state," said the assistant attorney general. "It is a notorious fact that the lowest visit the place, and having violated every provision on its charter, it is not entitled to the protection of the law."

Judge Ryors' ruling in the matter was brief. He merely overruled the demurrer and passed on to the next case. Judge Ryors has insisted that Fellom could be brought into court when wanted. He is friendly and sociable when off the bench and equally in his judicial deliberations.

A. A. Coult, a city newspaper photographer, was ordered arrested for taking a snapshot of the judge. This incident occurred just after Judge Ryors adjourned court. He was leaving the court house, when he noticed a group of young men, one of whom had a camera carefully balanced in his hands, standing in the doorway. The judge turned and double-quickly for another exit. Here he was met by the photographer, and with his handkerchief to his face, passed out of the building toward the tracks. The photographer was persistent, however, and followed. The judge delivered his pursuer a lecture "through his hat," holding a broad-brimmed Panama before his face. The photographer did not heed, and Judge Ryors called Sheriff Herpel, had him arrest the photographer and place him under $100 bond to appear this morning and answer a charge of disturbing the peace. S. X. Weidner signed Coult's bond.

E. F. Cunningham, a lawyer who testified before the grand jury earlier in the week, was recalled yesterday. He is said to possess knowledge of certain sums of money paid into the county campaign fund last year by the breweries. C. T. Dana, who took an active interest in the last campaign, was also a witness. Dana lives on South Broadway. Dana was a director in the Good Government League, and informed several friends at Clayton yesterday that preparations are under way to take an active interest in the coming campaign.

Summons Issued for Gov. Folk.

Prosecuting Attorney Rowland L. Johnston yesterday decided to issue a summons for Gov. Folk and have the chief executive appear before the grand jury and tell what he knows about "aggressive immorality" in the county. The subpoena was mailed to Jefferson City last night. The affidavit filed by Pellom against Sheriff Herpel had not been acted upon, and it is thought that Johnston will endeavor to secure evidence for this proceeding when he summons the governor to appear.

Fred Essen, chairman of the republican county central committee, was a witness yesterday before the grand jury, stating that he could "tell them more in ten minutes than they could learn in ten weeks from any other source." Just to what extent he lifted the lid of information is not known.

State Senator A. E. L. Gardner has kept close watch on the county situation since it was rumored that indictments were voted this week against a justice of the peace and three liquor dealers.

Judge Ryors will adjourn court today until next Thursday. He will go to his home in Linn, Osage county, and court will then be in session three days after his return. The grand jury has been instructed that it must hold its sessions only when the circuit judge is in court or in a convenient position to answer an emergency call.

The grand jury will convene this morning and continue examining witnesses until adjournment is taken. Tony Von Phul, city salesman for a St. Louis brewery, is one of the witnesses for today. He is expected to tell something of the contribution to the county campaign fund.

NIGHT RATE NO MORE

Telephone Company Proposes to Reap a Harvest.

New York, Aug. 31.—Half rates for night messages have been abolished by the telephone monopoly.

Notice to this effect was issued yesterday by the American Telephone and Telegraph company which, in cooperation with the New York Telephone company, provides the long distance phone service.

The charging of full rates for all use of the wires, day or night, will begin at midnight today.

Incidentally, the trust will reap a great harvest, for the strike of the telegraph operators has increased the long-distance phone business enormously, and many business men have taken advantage of the night rates to confer with their correspondents, particularly in the south and southwest, where the telegraph service still quite meager.
